TO

WILLIAM ALLEN WILBUR

Whose association with the George Washington University has helped it to realize many dreams, and whose visions of the future continue,
The 1930 Cherry Tree is dedicated.

The CHERRY TREE 1930

CLOYD HECK MARVIN
President of the University

President Marvin has been with the University for three years, and in this short time has planned and carried out many progressive measures.

HOWARD LINCOLN HODGKINS
Dean of the University

Students very seldom see Dean Hodgkins about the campus. We are doubly glad to see him when we do.

WILLIAM ALLEN WILBUR
Provost of the University

Although he holds the important position of Provost, he will continue as Dean Wilbur for us.

The CHERRY TREE 1930

GEORGE NEELY HENNING

Dean of the Graduate School of Letters and Sciences

Dean Henning is known as well to undergraduates as to graduates through his classes in advanced language.

CHARLES EDWARD HILL

Dean of Columbian College

It is to Dean Hill that upper-classmen in Columbian College go for advice on the planning of their courses, and on problems arising in the University.

HENRY GRATTAN DOYLE

Dean of the Lower Division in Columbian College

Dean Doyle's interests are not confined to his office of Dean, but as Chairman of the Student Life Committee and of the Publications Committee, he keeps in touch with student affairs of every description.

WILLIAM CARL RUEDIGER

Dean of the School of Education

Kindly understanding greets the students in the School of Education who visit the office of Dean Ruediger.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

WILLIAM CABELL VAN VLECK
Dean of the Law School

Dean Van Vleck holds the envied position of Dean of the highest rating law school in the United States.

WILLIAM CLINE BORDEN
Dean of the School of Medicine

Dr. Borden is exceedingly well liked among the students in the Medical School. It is only to be regretted that he is not better known among the students of the other colleges.

JOHN RAYMOND LAPHAM
Dean of the School of Engineering

Dean Lapham's genial good humor makes him one of the most popular of the Deans in the University.

LOUIS FRANCIS BRADLEY
Dean of the School of Pharmacy

Since Dr. Bradley has been Dean of the School of Pharmacy that department of the University has developed rapidly.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

NORRIS INGERSOLL CRANDALL
Director of the Division of Fine Arts

With Professor Crandall's efficiency at organization and his ability as a professor of the fine arts, he has made his division one of the outstanding in the University.

ALFRED FRANCIS WILLIAM SCHMIDT
Director of the Division of Library Science

Though Dr. Schmidt is a very busy person, he never seems to be too busy for a pleasant word to all who come his way.

WARREN REED WEST
Acting Head of the School of Government

Dr. West has proven himself in the past in the Political Science Department, and has now assumed the new responsibility of directing the School of Government.

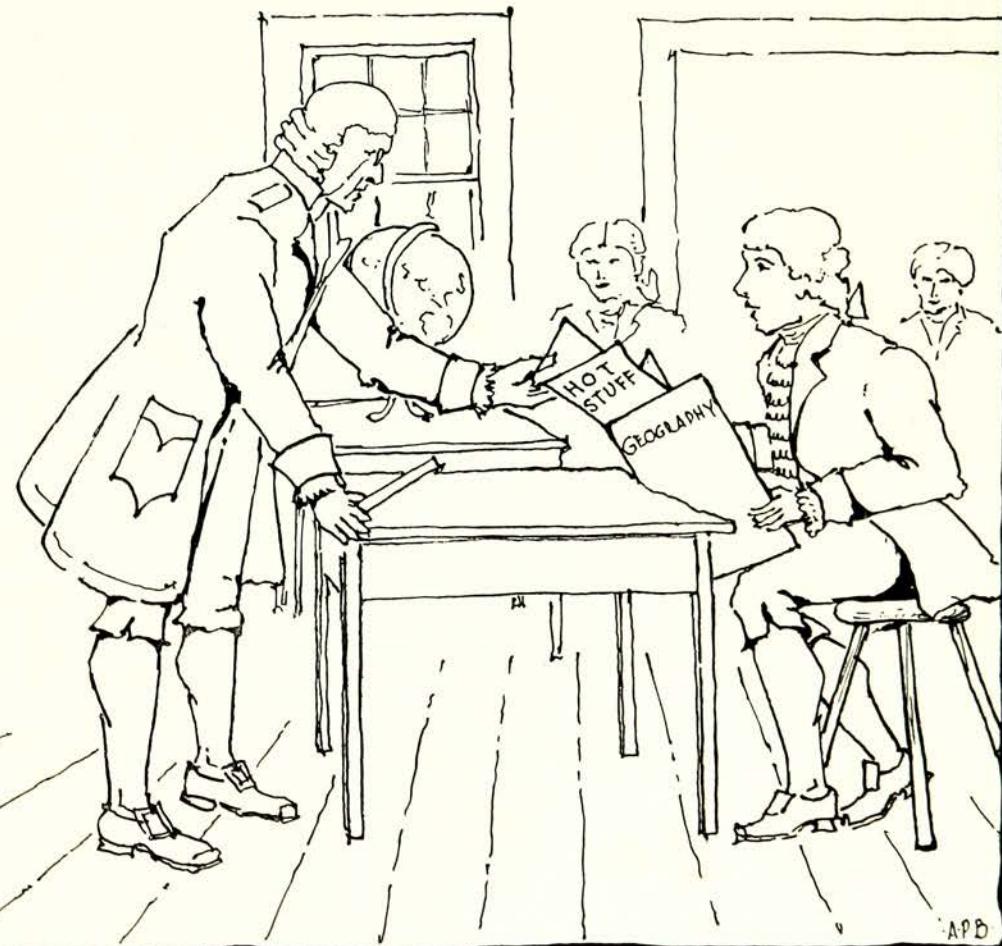

VINNIE GIFFEN BARROWS
Director of Personnel Guidance

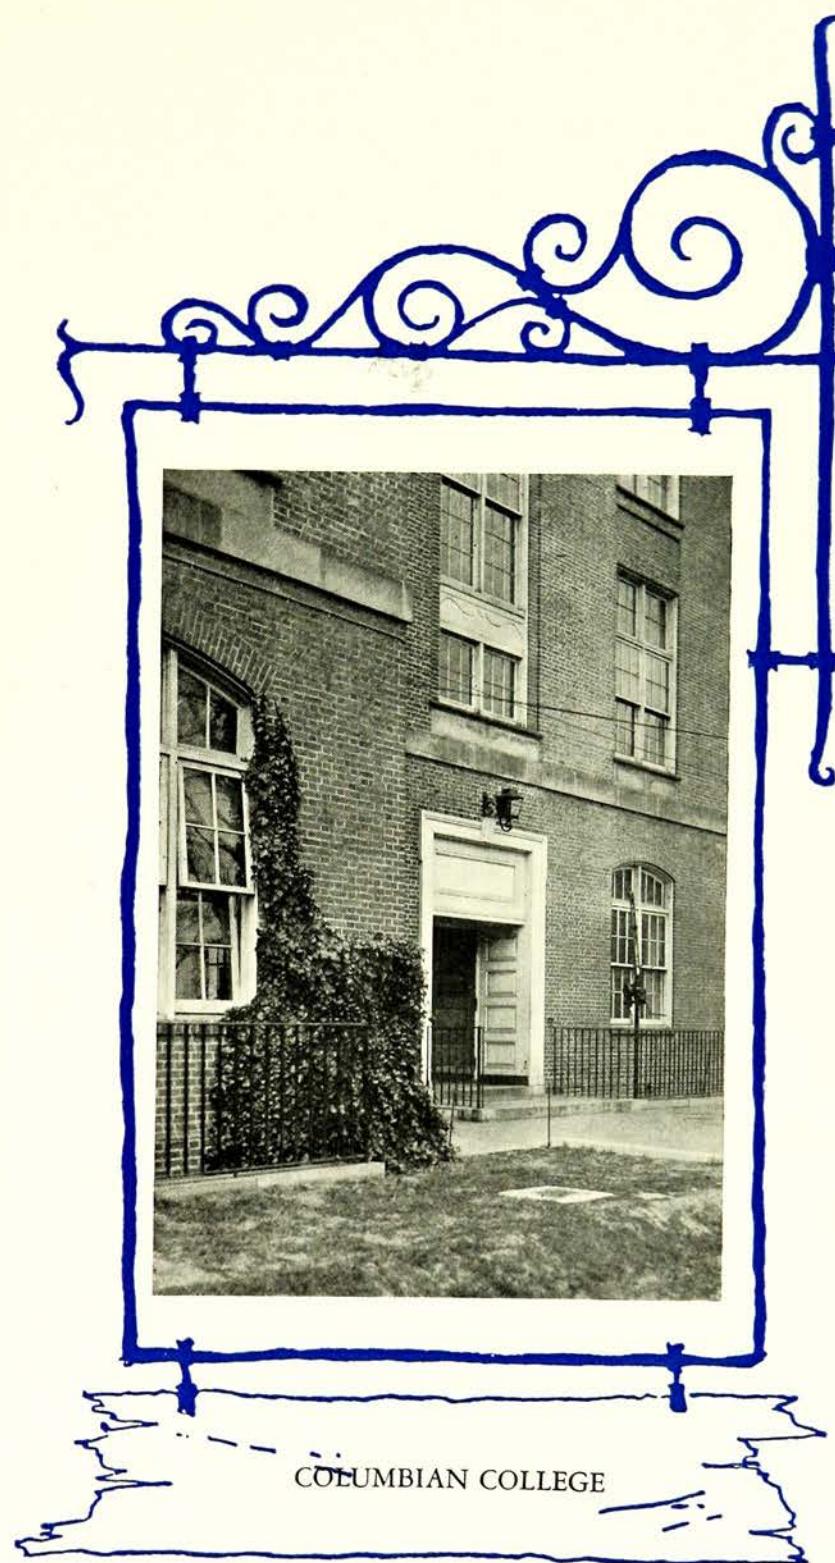

The George Washington University made the acquaintance of Mrs. Barrows just this year. She has taken a new position and is making a great success of it.

DON IGLEHART

The Colonial Club is entirely new in the form of organizations at the George Washington University. The Club has as its purpose the fostering of a spirit of welcome to the various organizations, the teams, the prominent visitors to the University, and the promotion of social life throughout the institution.

The Club acted as a welcoming body to the new athletic director, his assistants, and the new athletes.

At the beginning of the football season the club held a pep rally in Corcoran Hall, at which time some 500 persons were introduced to the football Coaches.

A number of very successful dances was sponsored on evenings of football games, at which time the members of the football teams and their opponents were the guests of honor.

At the close of the football season a banquet in honor of the football team was held at the Mayflower Hotel. Coach "Navy" Bill Ingram, of the United States Naval Academy, was the principal speaker on a very interesting program. Letters were awarded at this time to the varsity and freshmen, who had played in sufficient quarters to earn them.

The Colonial Club is planning a farewell smoker to be held the first week in May at one of the fraternity houses for the letter men of the past year.

On March 8, 1930, before a capacity audience in Carnegie Hall, New York City, The George Washington University Glee Club achieved the highest distinction that is accorded a college glee club. In competition with glee clubs representing various sections of the United States, the George Washington group was acclaimed the Intercollegiate Champion of the country.

This honor climaxes a year of serious effort on the part of the men in the Glee Club. Under the leadership of Dr. Harmon, they have developed into a singing unit, and it is due to this cooperation and ensemble work that they have merited their success.

It is interesting to note that this year marked George Washington's first appearance in Intercollegiate Glee Club competition; and in carrying off first place, the club becomes the only one outside of the New England section that has ever held the National Championship.

This year the club has continued its work at many concert engagements. Its purpose is to develop musical appreciation and expression among the students, and yearly it attracts increasing numbers of interested applicants for membership.

The George Washington Medical Society was organized in 1906, with a membership limited to graduates of the Medical School and members of the faculty. Meetings are held on the third Saturday of each month from September to May.

The purpose of this society is to provide opportunities for its members to participate in discussions of problems relating to their profession; to read papers on original scientific work, and to promote unity and friendly intercourse among graduates. Students of the Senior Class are invited to the meetings, and from time to time read creditable papers before the society. Additional interest is stimulated by frequent invitation of guest speakers prominent in their fields. At the annual banquets the guest speakers are chosen from those enjoying international recognition in their fields. Last year's speaker was Dr. Frank H. Lahey of Boston. This year's speaker was Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, Ohio.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

THE GENERAL ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

DR. HUNTER

It is the earnest hope of the General Alumni Association that members of the Classes of 1930 will maintain a close and lasting association with their Alma Mater through membership in the Association.

Every alumnus is automatically a member of the Association for one year following graduation. Thereafter, membership is continued upon payment of one dollar a year in annual dues, or ten dollars for life membership.

The graduates of The George Washington University have a very definite part in the life of the institution. They are represented on the Board of Trustees by six members of their own nomination, two of whom are elected each year for terms of three years. The privilege of the ballot is extended to members of the Association in good standing, who have held a degree for three years or longer.

Washington alumni of the University meet each month at luncheon and from time to time throughout the year at social functions of the Association. In many of the large cities groups of alumni have formed clubs, and newcomers from the University are made welcome.

Philosophy is one of the oldest of studies, yet its vital problems will never fail to interest thinkers. College courses in Philosophy are but an appealing introduction to students who seek knowledge, readings, lectures and discussions concerning the great philosophers and their philosophies.

Those students who have been recommended by the head of the department of philosophy for their outstanding work and interest in the subject have formed this fraternity that they might further interest in philosophical endeavor and carry out personal research work in their chosen fields.

MANAGERIAL SYSTEM

The Athletic Department has introduced a distinctly new system of managers for G. W. U. sports. At the head of this system is the Senior Manager, Ford E. Young, Jr., who is directly responsible to Coach Pixlee for the management of all sports. Under the Senior Manager are three Junior Managers, Kenneth Iverson, Robert M. Gray and Victor Emmanuel. Several sports are assigned to each of the three who are responsible to the Senior Manager for their sports. Each sport has a Sophomore Manager who is held responsible for his sport by the Junior Manager above him. This system places the burden of responsibility upon the student managers and relieves the coaches from much work and worry.

VARSITY FOOTBALL

The George Washington varsity football experienced a most disastrous season in the past year. Despite the heroic efforts on the part of the coaches, Walsh and Connaughton, and the available men, the team was unable to secure a single victory. The poor record of the Colonials may be attributed to the smallness of the squad and its lack of seasoned performers. Only five veterans of last year's team returned, Berkowitz, Clapper, McGrew, Francis and Clements. These men, aided by Adams, Gates and Boyle of last year's freshman team and Hoffman and Perry, bore the brunt of the Colonials heavy burden. All the men on the squad deserve great credit for having stayed in the games fighting gamely to the finish in a vain effort to overcome their tremendous handicaps.

The season was opened against Manhattan College and the Colonials went down to defeat, 27-7. The team showed its inexperience and was unable to cope with the powerful, well-drilled New Yorkers. McGrew, Clapper and Perry showed up well for the Buff and Blue. The next game was with American University and for the first time in the history of gridiron encounters between the two schools, George Washington was defeated by the determined Eagles, 8-0.

The luckless Hatchetites journeyed to Carlisle, Pennsylvania, to play Dickinson College, and in this game made their first real bid for a victory. However, after a closely contested, thrilling battle in which G. W. was leading most of the time, the Dickinsonians emerged victorious by the close margin of one point, 7-6. The winning touchdown was pushed over in the last few minutes of play against the fast-tiring Colonials, who had put up a plucky fight throughout the contest. The terrific line plunging of Blackie Hoffman and the all-around play of Berkowitz were especially meritorious.

C. C. N. Y. and William and Mary were our opponents in the next two games and were much too strong for the wearers of the Buff and Blue. G. W. scored against the Indians on a long forward pass, Berkowitz to McGrew.

The Colonials were nosed out in an interesting contest by St. Joseph's of Philadelphia by a twelve to seven score. The teams were well matched and played a tight game. With Hoffman, Adams and Berkowitz playing a great game, G. W. made a creditable showing. Against Juniata, the Colonials used a number of new players but were unable to stop Andrews, speedy captain of the visitors, and were defeated, 32-0. Berkowitz, Adams and McGrew played well for G. W., as did Hoffman whose line bucking gained him much praise.

As a climax to its unsuccessful season, George Washington suffered a crushing forty-eight to six defeat by Catholic University—traditional gridiron rival. The Colonials scored their lone touchdown after a series of long forward passes. Adams, Clapper and Hoffman played the best game for the Hatchetites.

Head Coach Pixlee has arranged for 1930 the most ambitious schedule ever attempted by a George Washington team. With a large group of experienced men coming up from the brilliant freshman squad, prospects for next year are very good.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

The George Washington Freshman team, under the tutelage of Max Farrington and Jean Sexton, experienced a highly successful season which concluded with a brilliant record of six wins and one defeat. Exhibiting a well-drilled offensive, consisting of off-tackle smashes and accurate forward passes thrown by Wells, quarterback, the Colonials amassed a total of 209 points. That their opponents scored but 38 points shows how stubborn and effective was the Cubs' defense.

Notable victories were earned over the strong Navy "B" squad, Georgetown Frosh, and the hitherto undefeated Catholic University Yearlings. The defeat of the Cardinals broke a two-year winning streak. The set-back suffered by the Frosh was administered at the hands of Western Maryland's powerful Freshmen, 7-6, by the margin of a missed drop-kick.

It is very probable that the great showing of the Cubs at Annapolis against the Navy "B" squad had much to do with the attractive place awarded George Washington on the Navy varsity schedule for 1930. Due to the Frosh's enviable record, prospects for next year's varsity are exceedingly bright.

The CHERRY TREE 1930

VARSITY BASKETBALL

The George Washington University Varsity Basketball team, trained by one of the youngest college coaches in the country, Joseph Mitchell, had quite a successful season, winning nine games and losing seven. Coach Mitchell assumed his duties late in the year and was faced with the problem of whipping a team into shape for the opening game with Shenandoah. Captain Gray, Fine and Thacker were the returning letter men around whom a combination was built. Jeweler, Castell, Hoover and Perry, of the Freshmen, and Harris, a clever newcomer, were the others in the fight for regular positions.

The opening game of the season was played against Shenandoah College and the Colonials won, 28-23, due largely to the efforts of Fine, Castell, and Jeweler. Team play was ragged in the game as in the following game with Baltimore University, in which G. W. bowed, 26-18, after rallying vainly to overcome the visitor's early lead.

G. W. next encountered Delaware University in a game featured by very close guarding on both sides. The Colonials came out on top, 16-14, after the lead had see-sawed back and forth several times. Fine, Castell and Perry were the chief scorers while Captain Gray played a great floor game.

The Hatchetites broke even in two games played against American University and Villanova. The Eagles succumbed to the onset of the Colonials, 29 - 22, but G. W. was no match for a superior team representing Villanova.

Taking a trip down in Virginia, the Colonials won two hard fought games at the expense of Randolph-Macon and Virginia Medical College. Fine proved the star of the 31-30 victory over Randolph-Macon when he sank a basket in the last thirty seconds of play to put G. W. ahead. Harris pushed Fine for scoring honors and the guards, Captain Gray and Jeweler, sparkled as they held the Randolph-Macon forwards scoreless from the floor. The Medicos forced the Hatchetites to an extra period before being defeated. Fine continued his great play and was high scorer again.

COACH MITCHELL

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

Playing a return game with Randolph-Macon, G. W. again emerged victorious. The contest was hard fought, with Castell ringing up the deciding points for the victors in a spectacular finish.

The tables were turned on Mitchell's protégés when American U. defeated them 25-19, but the Colonials came back to defeat the highly-rated Gallaudet five. Captain Gray starred in the latter game as he held Delmar Cosgrove, the visitor's brilliant high-scoring forward, scoreless from the floor.

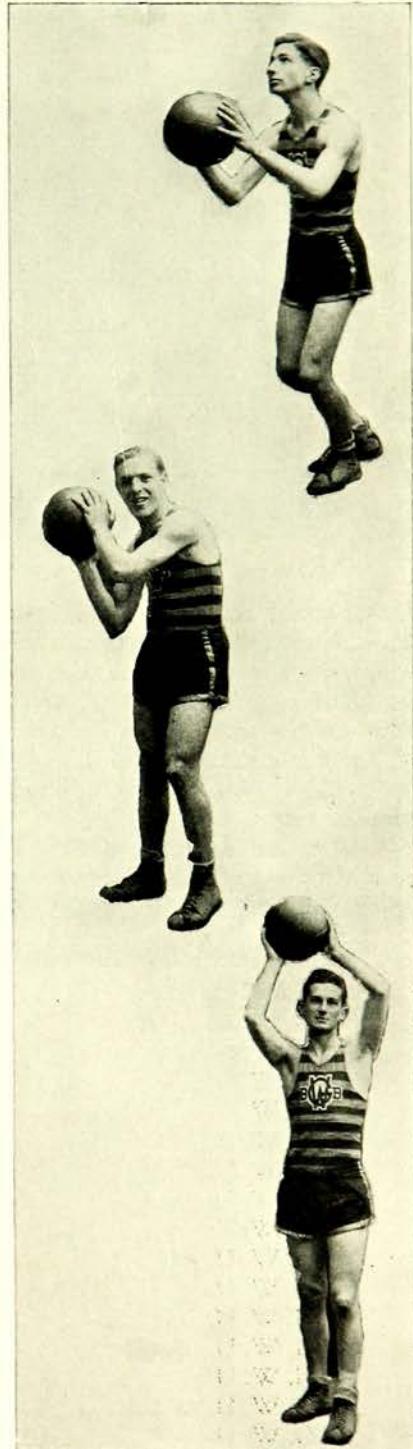

After losing to Navy and Salem College, G. W. defeated her ancient rival, Catholic University, in a stirring battle. The game was hard fought and hectic as is usual in G. W.-C. U. clashes. Fine and Castell did the bulk of the scoring for G. W.

The Colonials overwhelmed Virginia Medical, 40-19, and then journeyed to Delaware to absorb a 42-28 beating. The Delaware sharpshooters had their eyes on the basket and kept the scorers busy.

The season was brought to its traditional close with a game against Catholic University. The Cardinals came out to avenge their earlier defeat and were not to be denied. C. U. had a three-point lead at the half and maintained this throughout the rest of the game. The Colonials came back fighting valiantly but could not catch the determined Cardinals. Mitchell proved to be a fine coach and the team's success was due largely to his efforts. He was well liked by the players, who cooperated throughout the whole season.

The outstanding feature of the season was the play of Irvin Fine, midget forward, who was the team's offensive star. The little fellow was easily the most brilliant player on the team. Others who deserve much credit for their work were Harris and Castell who pushed Fine for scoring honors, and Captain Gray who played a consistently steady game at guard.

With the exception of Gray and Harris, the rest of the squad expect to return next year. In view of the splendid record of the freshman team and the number of varsity letter men returning, G. W. should have an exceptionally good team next year.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

The job of coaching the Freshman Basketball team was turned over to a student coach, Jack Conner, who also played on the team. He had a large group of experienced candidates to choose from and as a result the team was the best that ever represented the University. Out of eighteen games played, the Frosh won sixteen, breaking even in two games with Catholic University Freshmen and Georgetown Freshmen. Tech High School, Washington high school champions, Maryland University Freshmen, and other Washington high and prep schools were defeated by the Colonials in establishing their record. Among the most outstanding players on the team were Burgess, Conner, Zahn, Wells and Carlin.

VARSITY RIFLE

The George Washington Rifle team, under the continued guidance of Coach Frank Parsons, has demonstrated its superiority in another indoor rifle season. Starting out with two experienced men, a team has been built up which bowed only to Navy in the South Atlantic League. Among the victims of the Colonial squad in the league matches were Georgetown, Maryland, Princeton, Western Maryland, V. P. I., and Johns Hopkins.

William Barr and Harry Parsons have been chalking up high scores consistently with Barr doing some exceptional shooting in the match with Navy. Captain Ted Harrel, Arthur Tomelden, and Henry Boudinot have also done well throughout the season and are counted upon to maintain G. W.'s high position in the National Intercollegiate competition.

The outdoor season starts in April and a short schedule has been arranged. Matches will be shot with Navy and Army, the only outdoor teams on a competitive basis with George Washington, before the National Intercollegiate Outdoor Competition starts. Due to the excellent past record and the evident ability of its present team, the Colonial representatives should emerge well on top of this competition.

For the first time in the history of the University, George Washington was represented by a Boxing team. The Colonial boxers were tutored by Coach Harold Greene, who worked hard in developing a very creditable team.

G. W. appeared in four matches and came out with the good record of two victories, one tie and one defeat. Wins were scored over Manhattan and Pennsylvania Military College. Among the most outstanding boxers were Kleinman, Covaleski, Duffalo, Stanley and Phillips.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Women's Athletic Association of the George Washington University was organized in May, 1928. For many years women's athletics were controlled by a group of girls calling themselves the G. W. Club. This club was just a local organization and could not hope to maintain the highest standards in sports until it had definite relations with a national organization. With this as their aim this club of girls founded the W. A. A.

The chief aim and purpose of the Association is to further student participation in and control of athletics, and to formulate and put into operation rules governing athletics similar to those of other colleges.

Eligibility for active membership is based on participation in athletics to the extent of making a class team, in which case, the eligibility lasts until the end of the following season of the sport in which she has qualified, becoming manager or assistant manager in some sport, or by vote of the Executive Board.

Major and minor letters and class numerals are awarded upon recommendation of the instructor subsequently affirmed by the Executive Board. A limited number of honorary blazers are given by the association to members of the junior or senior class who have been most outstanding in athletics during their college years.

The officers of the association are: Naomi Crumley, President; Roberta Wright, Vice-President; Jenny Turnbull, Secretary, and Evelyn Folsom, Treasurer.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Executive Board consists of the officers of the association, the publicity manager, and the managers of all the sports. The Director of Physical Education, the Instructors in Physical Education, and the Secretary for Women's Activities act as advisory members.

The chief duty of this board is to carry out the aims of the association. In order to do this effectively the board requests that its members come to weekly meetings. There the managers have an opportunity to discuss particular problems that may arise in any of the sports. Special topics are prepared on sports and play in other colleges so that the members may know what is being done by other athletic associations. In addition to its normal duties this year the board sponsored three formal banquets; one given for the fall sports, one for the winter, and one for the spring sports. Any girl having participated in any sport was eligible to attend. Other social activities of this board are the "barn dance" given for the benefit of the freshmen, and the "co-ed card party."

This board is a very active group of girls and succeeds in keeping the very highest standards for women's athletics.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

The opening of this year's basketball season looked sad to us in spite of the fact that some of last year's star players were back with us. There was new material that had to be not only trained but assimilated with that of the old. But as the season progressed all fear vanished for it was soon evident that with the exceptional training of Miss Lawrence, the new coach, one of the fastest teams in the history of the University was developing.

Miss Lawrence, a coach of wide experience, showed that she not only knew the game of basketball, but she knew how to teach it, and teach it well. She emphasized such vital things as short, definite, quick passes. So that, by the second game of the season the team was so well organized it was able to defeat the old rival, William and Mary, for the first time in four years. After this victory the team worked like a clock all during the remainder of the season. With such great advancement in one year we feel that there is no need to question the future of basketball.

In the guard field Evelyn Folsom and Katherine McCallum should be remembered for their notable work in breaking up plays. And in the center Jenny Turnbull and Wilhemena Gude not only worked their signals but kept their opponents from working theirs. In the forward field Jean McGregor and Naomi Crumley showed unusual ability at dodging, pivoting, and shooting for the basket.

Those girls receiving letters were: Evelyn Folsom, Katherine McCallum, Jenny Turnbull, Wilhelmina Gude, Jean McGregor, and Mary Sproul—majors; and Katherine Palmer, Grace Haley, and Dorothy Wilson—minors.

The name of the George Washington University Girls' Rifle team is all that is necessary for this page. This team is not only known throughout the United States but is well known in foreign countries. Since 1926 the girls have been winners of the National Rifle Association Championship matches. And for the past three years they have won the trophy cup offered in the Dot and Circle match. We wonder just what it is that makes a team victorious for nine consecutive years—in this case we think it is due both to the exceptional material and to the excellent training given to the team.

Miss Betty Clark, a former member of the champions, is coach. Miss Clark, as well as several members of the present team, received training from Dr. Walter Stokes. Dr. Stokes is a former Olympic champion and is possessor of the highest medal ever given in rifle. His careful coaching was not useless as is proven by the wonderful record established by Miss Clark during her past two years as coach.

Members of the team are: Edna Collins, India Bell Corea, Naomi Crumley, Eugenia Cuvillier, Emera Johnson, Verna Parsons, Arline Spencer, and Roberta Wright.

VARSITY HOCKEY

Hockey, which is still considered young as a major sport at the University, promises a very bright future as a result of this season's work. With the careful training of the new coach, Miss Ruth Atwell, emphasis was placed on team work as a whole rather than on individual skill. Fundamental rules and tactics were stressed in the varsity games rather than the idea of winning. With such careful training we are looking forward to the George Washington University Hockey Team as representing the very best qualities to be found in this sport.

Games were played with Swarthmore College on November 16, Harrisonburg College on November 23, and with William and Mary College on November 25, 1929.

The following girls received major letters: Martha Benenson, Ruth Chindblom, India Bell Corea, Evelyn Folsom, Josephine Irey, Francesca Martin, Mary Sproul, Jenny Turnbull, Inge Von Lewinski, and Betty Zimmerman. Those receiving minor letters were: Claudia Kyle, Eloise Lindsay, Jean McGregor, and Sarah Reed.

VARSITY TENNIS

The George Washington University Tennis team kept a perfect record for six straight seasons. Last year this record was broken by the very close margin of one game which was lost to the old rival—William and Mary.

In the singles matches Jenny Turnbull showed excellent form. And Mary Sproul did not fail to make use of her forceful left hand drives. In doubles Naomi Crumley and Elizabeth Wright made a combination that was hard to defeat. Corella Morris and Marion Butler won the greater part of their matches, which added to the success of the team.

As a result of the fall tournament several new girls have been added to the squad. And since most of the team members from last year are back with us we expect another winning team for 1930.

Games have been scheduled with the following: Harrisonburg College, May 10; American University, May 10; William and Mary College, May 17; and Hood College, May 24, 1930.

VARSITY SWIMMING

The swimming season for girls opened this year soon after school began and lasted the entire year. This made it possible for beginners to come out and receive training with the more advanced swimmers. Miss Helen Lawrence, the new coach, took advantage of this and spent much of her time teaching the fundamentals of swimming. The girls, having received the proper training, show signs of developing into the best swimming team in the history of the University.

Elizabeth Cates is outstanding in diving. Such grace is rarely found among college students. Claudia Kyle shows great durability and strength by the short time in which she completes the long distance swims. And, whether due to her height or not, Inge Von Lewinski always manages to win in the plunges.

INTRA-MURAL SPORTS

"Play for Play's Sake" is the idea for which the newly organized Intra-murals are working. Miss Atwell, the director of Physical Training for Women, is endeavoring to provide sport not for those of varsity aspirations or abilities, but primarily for girls who wish to participate in athletics for exercise and fun.

Assisting Miss Atwell an intra-mural committee, headed by Mary Hudson, is vigorously putting into practice the Intra-Mural slogan: "A Team for Every Girl, A Girl for Every Team.". Members of the committee meet on Friday of each week. They review problems, plan what sports shall be contested in each month, and set forth the exact rules that shall govern the games. Weekly reports are made on the way Intra-Mural sports are managed in other colleges.

Students who compose this group are: Mary Hudson, manager; Mary Detwiler and Marion Lum, assistant managers, and one member from each eighteen active groups of the campus. These representatives are by name:

Cary Aal, Elizabeth Cates, Eleanor Coon, Dorothy Ruth, Katherine McCallum (non-sorority); Althea Lawton (Delta Zeta); Peggy Mays (Chi Omega); Edith McCoy (Kappa Kappa Gamma); Lee McNeil (Sigma Kappa); Catherine Palmer (Phi Mu); Rosalie Reed (Pi Beta Phi); Ethel Theis (Phi Delta); Grace White (Zeta Tau Alpha); and Virginia Whitney (Kappa Delta).

The object of these representatives is to see that each girl takes back to her group the news of what is going on in meeting and to interest these girls in the sports. At the end of the school year the group which has won the most contests is to be rewarded by a cup given by Miss Atwell. The name of the victorious group will be printed on a placard and hung in the gymnasium.

INTER-CLASS BASKETBALL

Inter-class basketball is one of the most interesting sports of the year. Varsity girls are not permitted to compete for the class teams and as a result there is more interest and real competition. The schedule is arranged so that each class plays three games. This year the tournament was won by the Juniors.

TRACK

Track is held in the spring and brings out more girls than any other sport. At the close of the season a meet is held at the Central High School Stadium. This is under the auspices of the men's G. W. Club and is managed by the W. A. A. This year the following events were won by:

75-yard dash	Frances Heid
Broad jump	Roberta Wright
50-yard dash	Frances Heid
Discus	Louise Berryman
High jump	Kathryn Gray
Inter-class relay	Sophomores

SOCCER

Soccer is one of the newest sports offered for the women of the University. This year it was coached by Miss Helen Lawrence and managed by Verna Parsons. The sophomore class won the tournament in which class teams and intra-mural teams competed.

GOLF

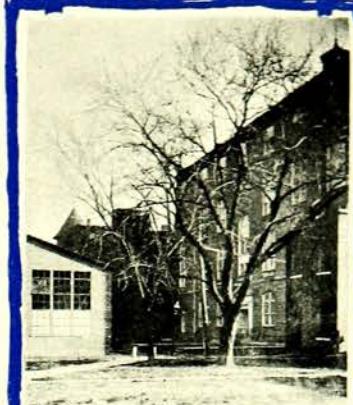

Golf is offered in the fall and spring for girls interested in this sport. Special arrangements are made so that professional training may be received. A tournament is held in which beginners alone may compete. A cup is offered to the winner of this tournament.

DENNIS CONNEL
Director

"Gyped in Egypt", the 1929 Troubadour Presentation, was a complete success, praised by the Washington newspapers, the G. W. students, their friends and families.

The book, "Gyped in Egypt" was written by Frank Westbrook and Mildred Burnham, and was very cleverly organized.

The songs were the result of the combined efforts of Daniel Beattie, William Jemison and Frank Westbrook.

The female role of Geraldine O'Honey, an American reporter, was carried quite successfully by Mildred Burnham, while opposite her in the role of Jerry O'Kaye, played by Bert Bagranoff, also a reporter, and in love with Geraldine. As is true of all love stories, there was a third person, forming the eternal triangle. This character, Ima Sheba, threatened to break up the happy love match, and Jane Wilson, who played this part extremely well, almost succeeded.

To divert the audience from the more serious side of the plot were Hattie and Dick, the juvenile leads. Caroline Brasch, in the part of Hattie Jones, beautiful but dumb friend of Geraldine, was, in spite of its being her first appearance on the stage, natural and at ease. Her part went off beautifully, with the perfect cooperation of Henry Nestor, who was Dick Smith, the male juvenile. Dick's splendid voice and Hattie's naturalness made their part a more prominent one than was originally intended by the authors. Wilhelmina Gude was a favorite with the audience from the start with her quaint interpretation of Euphasia Jenkins, Aunt of Geraldine O'Honey. Gerald Sickler in the part of Mussel Abdomen had an opportunity to display his natural ability. In true Sickler style he kept the audience laughing throughout the show with his wise cracks and "hand is quicker than the eye" tricks. In the less prominent, but nevertheless clever parts were Frank Westbrook as "Lucius Waze" and Quincy Lee as "Adolph Means", Albert Perry as High Priest Atta Babee and "Sock" Kennedy as Arthur Momiter.

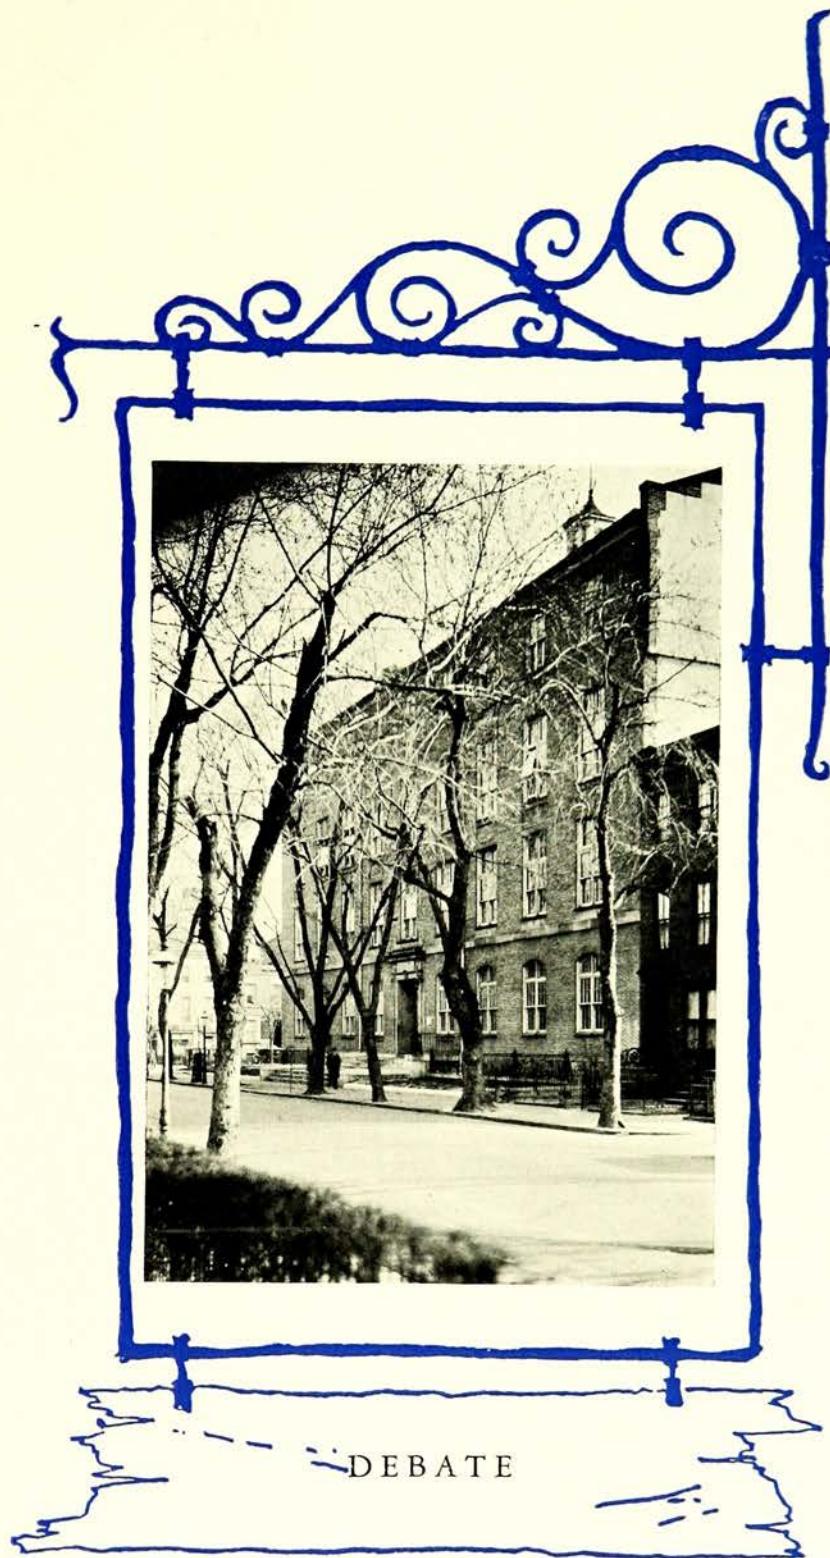

"Gyped in Egypt" was well written and extremely well directed by Denis Connell, to whom a large share of the credit goes for the success of the performance.

The temple scene was the most beautiful of all. It was in this scene that the earring of Isis was found by an expedition led by Stephen Nyman. Around this earring the whole plot was laid; the search of it, the finding of it, and, most amusing of all, the getting rid of it.

A resume would not be complete without a mention of the splendid choruses, trained by Julia Denning and Dorothy Schenken. The routines were original and well done.

The most popular song hits were "Must I Forget", by Dan Beattie, "The Nile Love Song," by Bill Jemison, and "Face the Sun," by Frank Westbrook. The opening number "How Do You Get That Way" and "Goodnight" were also Dan Beattie's contributions.

From the opening number to the final curtain there was no dragging moment, and we congratulate everyone in any way connected with the Troubadours for the success of "Gyped in Egypt" . . . We don't think we were gyped.

PROF. YEAGER

WILLARD HAYES YEAGER

Willard Hayes Yeager, Depew professor and executive officer of the Department of Public Speaking, came to George Washington University this year from the University of Illinois, where he was acting head of the Division of Public Speaking last year. Previous to his two years at Illinois he was on the faculty of the Division of Public Speaking at Ohio State University.

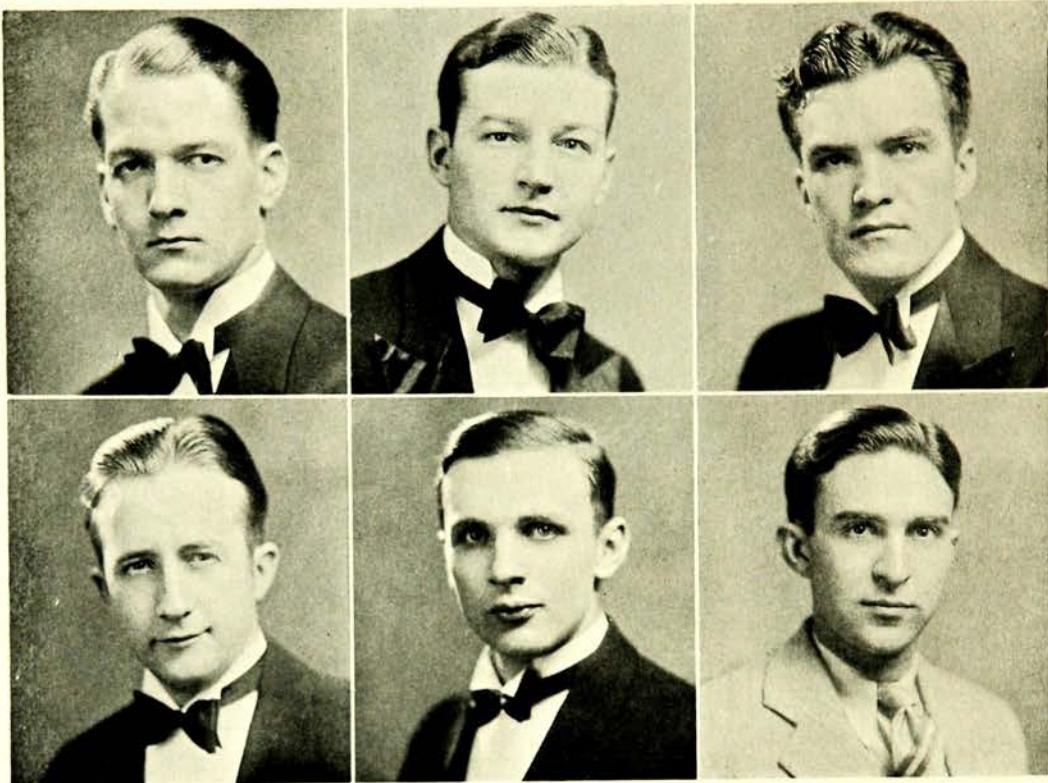

He is co-author with Prof. W. P. Sandford of the University of Illinois of three textbooks on public speaking. These are Successful Speaking, a high school text; Principles of Effective Speaking, a first course college and university book; and Business and Professional Speaking, a textbook for advanced college classes and a handbook for business men and women. These books are used by approximately seventy-five schools.

Professor Yeager is the first to occupy the Depew Chair of Public Speaking, which was established this year, through a gift by Mrs. Depew to perpetuate the memory of her distinguished husband, Chauncey M. Depew, in the nation's Capital. With the establishment of the Depew Chair of Public Speaking was launched also the new department of public speaking.

The Public Speaking Department plans to offer many courses in public speaking, debating, and other phases of the field of speech, and to provide well-rounded instruction in this important subject.

In addition to classroom instruction the efforts of Professor Yeager have been given to the promotion of George Washington University's excellent debate record.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

WINIFREDE BEALL

BARBARA MILLER

The secret is out! Miss Colonial Belle has been named by the popular vote of the student body, and now we present her and her maids of honor, the two girls who stood next in line.

The contest has been enshrouded in mystery, and we keep you in suspense a little longer. On the next page, if you care to skip this, you may learn something of the history of Miss Colonial Belle. But if you can be patient a little longer, it would be interesting for you to know a little of the busy lives of the two runners-up in the famous contest.

Winifrede Beall, who won second place, is one of the best known girls on the campus. For several years she made a name for herself without the aid of a Greek letter sorority as backing, and then last year she joined Kappa Kappa Gamma, and gave to them a member who was outstanding in activities and personality. "Winnie" is a member of Hour Glass Honor Society, a member of the Board of Editors of this annual, a chairman of the "Y" cabinet, and a member of other groups, including the Student Life Committee, the Women's Advisory Council, and the Women's Athletic Association. This is certainly indicative of the girl's popularity and her wide acquaintance on our campus.

Barbara Miller, the fortunate girl placing next among our popular co-eds is one of those unusual people about whom one never hears an uncomplimentary remark. She is likeable and dignified, and such is the spell of her personality that we understand even the Army and Navy call a truce when she is around. Despite her varied social activities, Barbara has not been idle in school activities. She is a member of Alpha Delta Pi, danced in the Troubadour show and successfully ran the beauty contest for the 1929 CHERRY TREE.

CAROLYN AT THE AGE OF 4.

And now—we can keep it no longer—so we proudly present Miss Carolyn Jackson, Miss Colonial Belle of George Washington University.

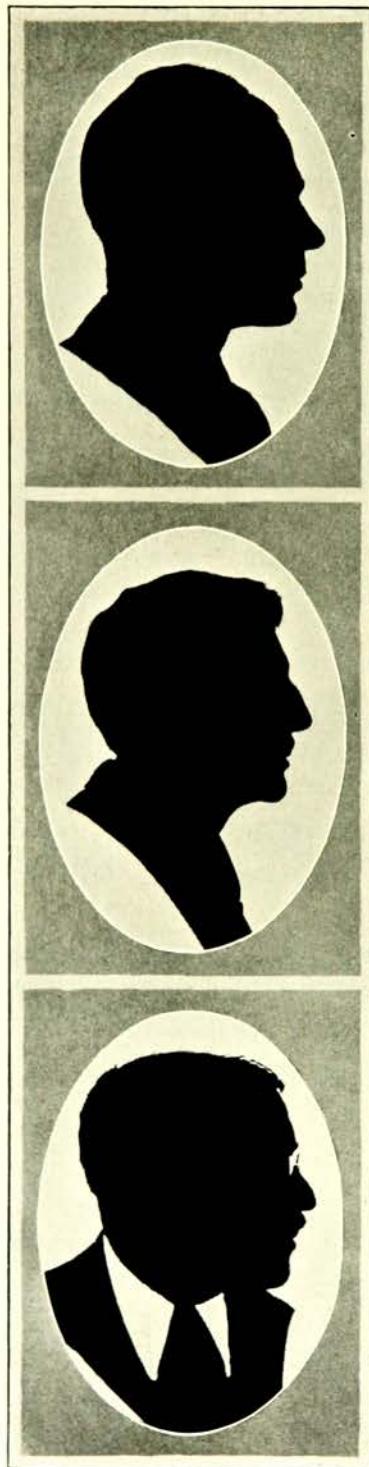

We remember Carolyn when she first came to G. W. almost three years ago, and in our worldly-wise way observed that here was a freshman who would not be submerged by the other 6,000 students but who would stand out as an individual. We were right, of course, for Carolyn's popularity has steadily increased. She is versatile and accomplished and does well whatever she undertakes. Miss Jackson is a member of Pi Beta Phi, is an equestrienne of some note and as a dancer has graced the Troubadour chorus for several years.

The above picture shows our Carolyn at the age of four, and we can see in it the poise and charm of our Carolyn of fifteen years later. We predict for our popular belle a lengthening line of conquests and a future filled with success and happiness.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

SIDELIGHTS OF OUR PROFESSORS

"Bobby" doesn't always aim to please, but he does more often than not, all depending upon how good-natured or how sensible his pupils may be. He climbs rapidly, not only to his third-floor office, but to recognition. We predict that even the coming heat will fail to dampen our new Director's enthusiasm and energy for the trials that Summer School may bring.

A non-scientific analysis of Dr. Bartsch reveals an admirable man who inspires many to promise their days to worms and dissecting rooms. Indeed, though you discover that you are but a worm on two legs, your respect for that species becomes highly developed under his guidance, and you are content.

That Slave-driver who knows everybody's business and why.

He is good for anyone wishing to write papers and read books, and the sorority girls just couldn't do without him.

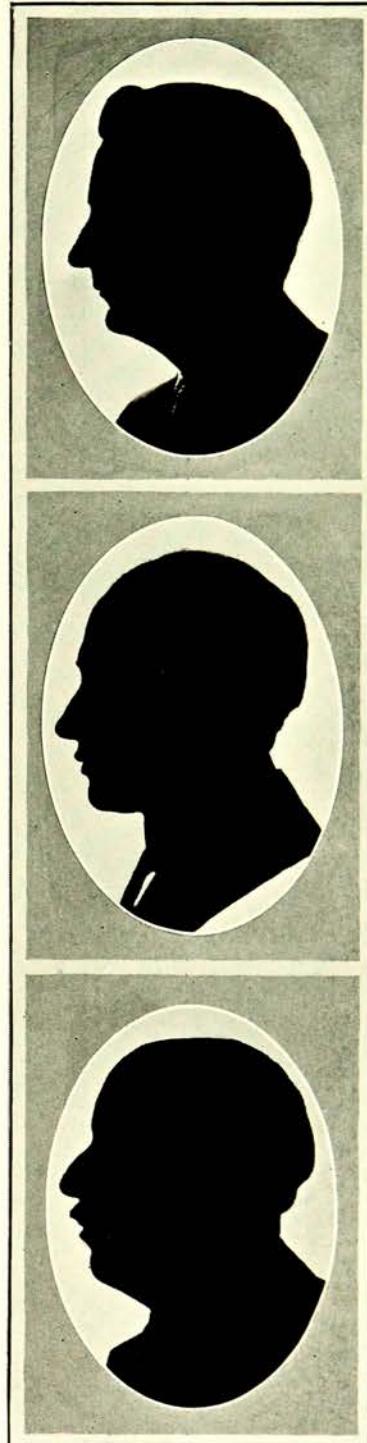

We might mention that his ties and handkerchiefs always match, and his shoes are always polished, therein perhaps lies the popularity.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

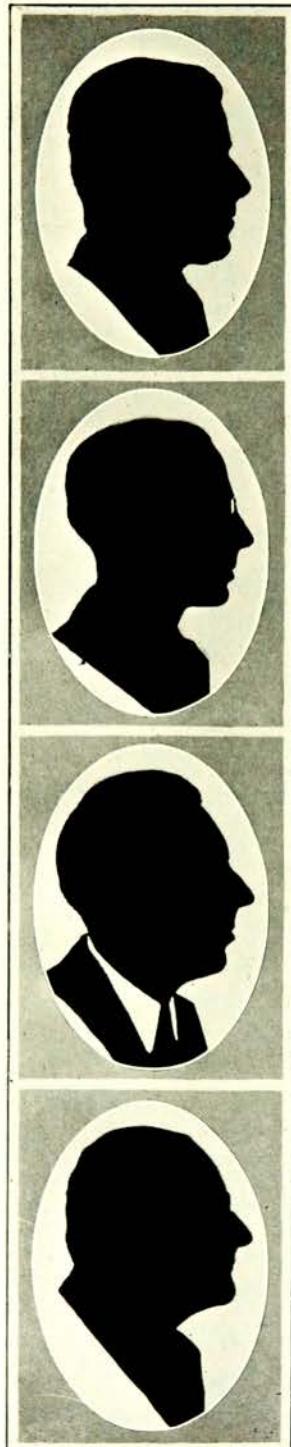

We're going to try an experiment one of these days to find out what is underneath that heavy lock of curls hanging over our psychology professor's forehead. Until then he will continue to baffle the keenest of the little masses of fibres, nerves and blood vessels that sit and listen to his gland-curdling theories.

Dr. West gives his hair sun-baths in walks around our CAMPUS while he figures out possible ways of sending out competent representatives in our Government's foreign surface. But at that, he's never too busy for an individual interview, and "What's your chief interest" is only the beginning of many a conversation that helps bewildered aspirants to prepare for stiff examinations.

We should like to see Dr. Richardson ruffled and upset, but we realize that nothing we could say would accomplish that end. Even years of dealing with G. W. students have failed to rob him of a calm, philosophic determination to reason, reflect, and maintain faith in us.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

One professor at least who has never fallen for any student's line. (He yields to nothing less than the Swiss mountains.) A serious face and square shoulders give an impression of sincerity and ambitions yet to be realized.

A visit to Professor Donaldson's class will convince you that he doesn't spend all of his time making himself immaculate. International Relations aren't nearly as dry as they sound, especially if you look at them through his trim little eyeglasses.

Professor Deibert is the dapper gentleman who can teach the finest points in bridge and golf, not to mention French and Spanish. The Romance Language department had to be enlarged this semester to accommodate the overflow from his classes, in which there are about as many boys as girls—now there's popularity for you.

Professor Robert Russ Kern, the reserved gentleman with the piercing eagle eye, really has lots of good radical ideas about how the world should be run, even if they are a little above our heads. To attend one of his classes is a liberal education in itself.

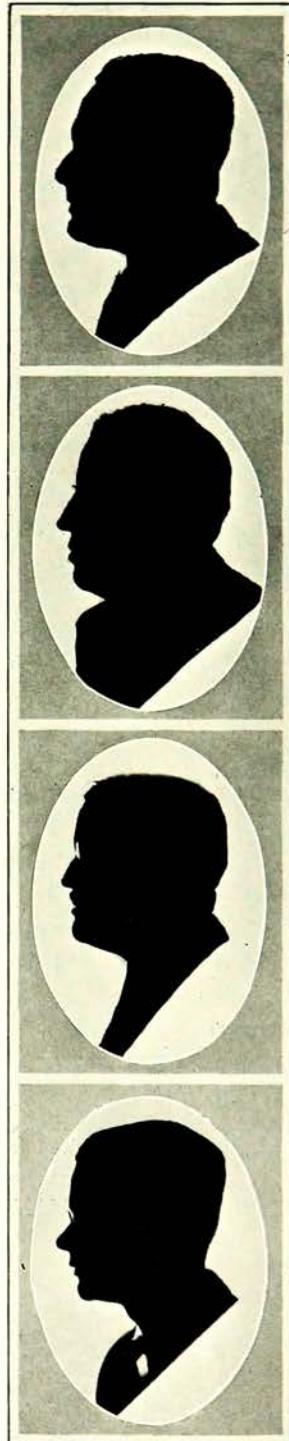

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

Colin Mackenzie Mackall is a jovial Scotchman who twinkles and booms at the world from behind a big cigar. He seems to enjoy life so much—that's all we have against him.

Professor Tillema typifies the modern conception of what an absentminded professor should be. Any day now we expect him to tear a student in small pieces and request that the examination leave the room.

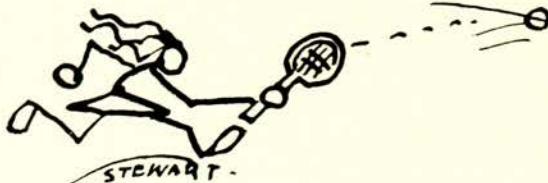

Another energetic and well-liked professor is Robert Griggs, whose flowers and students work to the tune of an alarm clock. He comes in touch with an abundance of green material and brings it successfully to full bloom.

We -uh-uh will not take up the s-s-study of English classics. Now do be original, and d-d-don't recite from the book. First thing we know, we'll be Bah-Joving each other, and getting our wrists smacked.

The GHOST, this Will O' the Wisp of George Washington publications, seems at last to be finally extinguished. What with suppression way back in 1922, a good comeback a few years later, a hard struggle for existence through faculty prejudice and student apathy, and a couple of risque issues last year the "Powers That Be"—have finally succeeded in returning the GHOST to an ignominious grave among the folds of a "great and glorified Hatchet"—But what this is all leading up to is this—we're trying to justify our (meaning the Ghost) sudden appearance as a part of the Feature Section — it's our last fling (perhaps), so bear with us.

ADVICE TO FRESHMEN

By PEGGY SOMERVELL

If popularity you seek
 You certainly should be a Greek
 But think you long and think you well
 Before your preference you tell.

A Chi O always looks her best
 To Delta Zetas men are pests
 Kappas are the athletes
 Sigma Kappa's hard to beat
 Phi Mu's a seclusive lot
 Zeta Taus are plenty hot
 Kappa Deltas have a house
 Phi Delt's quiet as a mouse
 A D Pi is very old
 Pi Phis all have dates untold
 A D Theta's quite dramatic

Now choose before you're all rheumatic.

LOGIC

Nothing is better than heaven.
 Hell is better than nothing.
 Therefore Hell is better than Heaven.

Co-ed: Jack, are you sure it's me you're in love with and not my clothes?
 Jack: Test me, darling.

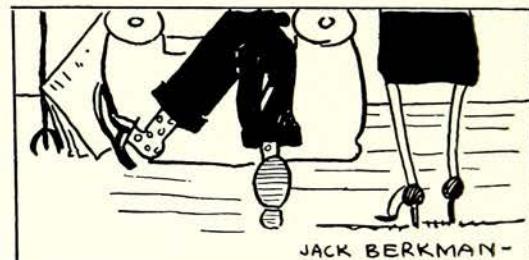

—Buccaneer.

Ikey, I hear you had a fire last Thursday.
 Sh-h-h, next Thursday.

I say, Joe, your girl looked quite tempting in that sort of Biblical gown she was wearing last night.
 What do you mean, Biblical?
 Oh, Sort of Lo and Behold!

—Puppet.

Little Jack Horner
 Sat in a corner
 Eating his Christmas pie.
 He put in his thumb
 And pulled out a lawnmover
 And said
 Now how in h—— did that get here.

NOW WE HAVE MUD!

Before they started to fix the yard,
 We had our sense of beauty jarred;
 But anyway, the ground was hard,—
 Now we have MUD!

When they are through with all they've planned,
 We'll have some grass and side-walks grand.
 We'll have a Campus, but my land!
 Now we have MUD!

—Helen Hall.

RESIGNATION

I have seen him—my ideal.
 He is big and blonde and handsome.
 His eyes are the restless, murmuring storm on the ocean.
 His hands lean and brown as the leaves as they glow in the autumn.
 I saw him once. It is over.
 I may never see him again.
 I am content; my long quest is ended.
 I shall marry my lean-faced boy;
 I like his pale cheeks and stooped shoulders.
 I shall settle down to a sink filled with dishes
 And be content.
 I once saw him—my ideal.

—Peggy Somervell.

They laughed when I sat down at the piano.
 Yes, but what did they do when you began to play?
 Kept right on laughing.

—Malteaser.

Caller: I wonder if I can see your mother, little boy.
 Is she engaged?
 Little Boy: Engaged? She's married.

Associate editor: Let's not print any more Scotch, prohibition, or co-ed jokes.
 Editor: All right, I'm tired putting out this lousy magazine, anyway.

How does Rose like your new mustache?
 Darn, it, I forgot to show it to her.

—Punch Bowl.

God made women beautiful so that men would love them. He also made them dumb so that they would love men.

—Puppet.

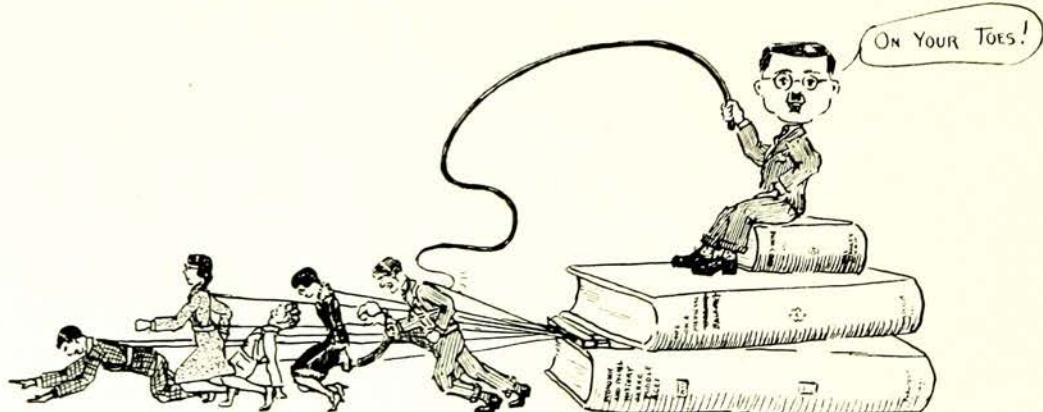

VARIETY

I get A in English
 And I get B in math;
 C in economics
 And D. in French—don't laugh.

That's why I take four subjects.
 If I had six, you see,
 I'd have an E and then an F,
 And then where would I be?

And so I take four subjects—
 Get grades from D to A;
 And thus I have variety,
 The "Spice of Life," they say.

—Helen Hall.

The Slave Driver

Amos: We needs a cupidore.
 Andy: I appoints Brother Jones as cupidore.

The prof said he was going to lecture on wading birds, and begin with the stork, and I just laffed and laffed—

Because—I knew there wasn't any stork.

Phi: Your sister is spoiled, isn't she?
 Bete: No, that's the perfume she uses.
 —Wasp.

Tough kid: Me old man was born in a log cabin full-a chinks.

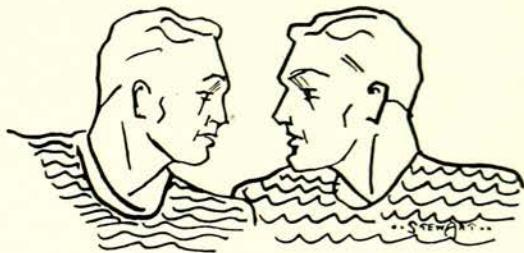

Ditto: Thass nuthin'; me old man was born in a tenement full of wops.

If all the boys and girls who are making whoopee today were placed in a straight line they would probably continue to make whoopee.

I see where an eminent card player just got twin babies—
 Yest, his partner doubled his bid.
 —Malteaser.

"JUST SWEEPING THRU COLLEGE"

COMPARISON

Men are as iron
 Controlled by the heat
 With which they come into contact.
 Like crude ore
 With many defects.
 If left alone,
 But by applying heat
 They are easily guided
 Into necessary channels.
 When they harden
 Fire them to white heat
 Pound them, stretch them
 They become malleable iron
 Easily wrought.
 A more complicated process
 Tenders them fine steel,
 Refined, responsive, pliable,
 Unbreakable.

—Peggy Somervell.

Bashful Young Man: I am going to steal a kiss.
 Not-So-Bashful Girl: Let the crime wave begin.
 —Voodoo.

Roses are red
 Violets are blue
 Dandelions are yellow
 Carnations are various colors.

College is the place where one spends several thousand for an education and then prays for a holiday to come on a school day.

—Sun Dial.

Old Maid (hopefully): Who's that under the bed?
 Voice: Nobody but us shoes.
 Old Maid: Aw heck!

—Sniper.

Solomon wrote his songs the night before and his proverbs in the morning after.

—Sniper.

College Life As Typified By The Movies

Shy youth: Do you love me?
 Pretty maid: I love everybody.
 Shy youth: Aw let God do that—we should specialize.

I may not have a little fairy in my home, nor a little miss in my motor, but I have a little made in my cellar.

—Sniper.

Mike: Watchagotnapackidge?
 Ike: Sabook.
 Mike: Wassanaimuvitt?
 Ike: Sadickshunery, fullinaims Wife's gonna get-a-plecedog anagottanaimferim.

—Orangepeel.

AND SO HE WENT SOUTH

There was a man went walking,
 Went walking down the street.
 That man when first he started out
 Was standing on his feet.

Ice was on the sidewalk,
 Ice was on the street.
 The man took just a few short steps,
 Then slipped and took a seat.

His hat went in a puddle,
 His gloves went in the snow.
 The man sat on the side-walk
 And gnashed his teeth in woe.

He picked his snowy gloves up,
 And he took his dripping hat;
 And he quickly called a taxi
 To the place where he was at.

He went right to the station,
 Took a train bound for a port;
 For he vowed he'd leave this country
 On a ship of any sort.

He bought a one-way ticket
 To the hottest tropic shore.
 There he lives on the equator
 In a little two-by-four.

And he doesn't even notice
 If the black folks treat him nice,
 Because he is so tickled
 That there isn't any ice.

—Helen Hall.

IN MEMORIAM

There was a fence, an old iron fence,
 'Round on the G Street side;
 But progress to the campus came Improvements came;
 The fence was cast aside.

They've fixed the sidewalk, planted grass;
 'Tis neater than before.
 But still we miss the old iron fence,
 The crooked fence,
 The fence that is no more.

—Helen Hall.

"Poor old Simpkins! He and his wife cashed in the other day."

"What! Both of them?"

"Yeah. He died and she got the insurance."

TO AMY LOWELL

BY G. R.

(Reprinted from the Wig of March, 1929)

These are New England Lilacs in your hands,
Color of blue beneath the blue-curved skies,
And yet your air is foreign, and your eyes
Carry the saffron and the jade of lands
Far to the east, a soul who understands
The ancient mellowed things, rich wine that lies
In medieval dungeons, stifled sighs
Of slant-eyed girls in lotus-gardenèd strands.

Your mind's a weathered ship and very old
Fashioned on firm New England lines, but taught
By far sea-searchings; in your song is wrought
Venetian sky and bits of Chinese gold,
Gorgeous, barbaric tapestries unrolled
Against the gray walls of New England thought.

Feeling the need for a publication at the George Washington University in which the literary-minded students of the school might find opportunity to express themselves, some of us, with the suggestion of Professor Douglas Bement, began to organize the Colonial Wig in the spring of 1927.

All during the summer, our Muse was the most self-conscious lady imaginable. She began to take on airs; nothing seemed too good for her. In September, Helen Dix, who used to live down on G Street in those days, became the first editor-in-chief, and we met at her house to discuss the Wig. Through the haze of parliamentary law, out of which it seems necessary even a literary publication must be born and taken form, we managed to hob-nob over the new poetry, the new novels, and so speak at length upon our own ideas.

Fact then replaced the Muse who tittered back-stage to change her costume from Shelleyan dimity to something a little more subdued and serviceable. There were manuscripts to be read. Discussions. Sensitive toes. The night before we took the copy to the printer's for the first issue, we sat long and late over lemon cokes and the problems of literary style.

Not even then, could we escape reality. On the day when the Wig came fresh and green from the printer's—a bitter, cold day, one of those uncompromising days that looks at you out of a glassy eye—we were faced with the problem of selling out "stuff."

In 1927-28, we published twice and came even.

In 1928-1929 under the systematic regime of Wanda Webb, our second editor, the Wig was published three times and again came even. Late in May, we acquired an office of our own. It had one window that looked out on somebody's back yard and four newly plastered walls which we decorated with the title pages of old Wigs. In a pinch, seven people could get into that room, and as a rule, all seven talked at once.

George Roth, who had contributed poetry to the Wig for two years, who had seen the magazine grow up from a mere infant, and who was now hoary with dignity, became the third editor-in-chief. At the beginning of the autumn of 1929 the University became interested in the Wig in an administrative way, and took it under its wing, with the intention of publishing it in conjunction with the other publications of the school.

And—if we may repeat—feeling the need for a publication in which the literary moods of the students of the University may be expressed, even if those moods be a little purple at times—we feel the Wig should grow to a ripe old age, and that its future should always be a successful one.

TREASURE HUNT at the Dower House

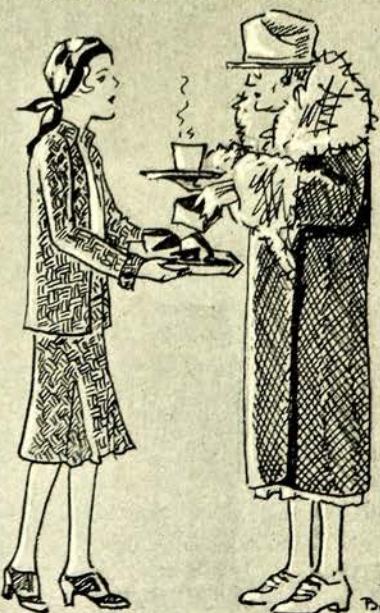

Marcelle Le Menager discovers the buried jewels

Marcelle Le Menager

THE HISTORIC DOWER HOUSE, in nearby Maryland, was the scene of the Treasure Hunt and Trophy Feast held one cold November afternoon by the Columbian Women of George Washington University. G.W. girls assumed the role of pirates for the afternoon, and, dressed in gay colors, they took part in the exciting hunt for hidden treasures. Marcelle LeMenager found the chest of jewels, and Alice Graham dug from the ground a hundred copper pieces. The pirate coeds acted as hostesses to the several hundred guests, serving them delicious Dower House refreshments. The old cemetery, the beautiful woods, the interesting cellar, and the many rooms of the House were all sought out by the guests.

PAN - H-ELLENIC PROM

May 13, 1930, in the Gold room of the Wardman Park the Pan-Hellenic Prom was held between the hours of ten and one.

The "8th Ruffle", satiric sheet of Gamma Eta Zeta, women's journalistic fraternity, came out at the stroke of twelve. In it honorable mention was given all those neglected by the Razzberry, and a general sizzling in all G. W.-ites.

Though no favors were given the men, this faction showed its gratitude for having been invited by supplying corsages to their respective dates.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

The matrimonial bureau of George Washington University, has been exceedingly busy this year, due to the comparatively large number of June graduates among our co-eds. This has led to the announcement of numerous engagements and June weddings. We can't decide whether it is an evidence of weakness on the part of the "eds" or more plausibly, a clever trick of the girls by which "leap year" has been moved up two years.

On the side of engagements we will attempt to list those brought to our notice since the beginning of the school year 1929 and '30.

Jean Bethune, Sigma Kappa, and student of the University has recently announced her engagement to Walter L. Phillips, Jr. During her scholastic studies, we were unable to fathom the smug, happy serenity and aloofness of manner where the eds of the campus were concerned. But I think this step in the direction of one new to G. W.-ites, serves as an adequate explanation.

Lydagene Black, member of Phi Mu and prominent scholastically while at G. W. U. has finally ensnared George Muth, member of S. A. E., also a former G. W. graduate.

With Julia Denning goes one of the outstanding co-eds of G. W. U., participant in all types of sports, prominent in Troubadour work and member of Chi Omega. She and her future husband, Robert Barnes, a G. W. U. Theta Delta Chi, are to spend the three months of their honeymoon in Europe, where Barnes will continue his architectural studies.

Jeanne Gravatte, graduate of the University several years ago and a member of Chi Omega, has announced her long-awaited engagement to LePage Cronmiller—the wedding to take place in June.

Mary Hoge, only at G. W. U. during her freshman year, became a wearer of the arrow and the "wine and silver blue", made a bid for the Troubadour chorus, succeeded, and topped off all with an engagement ring from the faithful Bob Burton, a U. of Virginia man and lover of long standing. Perhaps Mary is better known due to her brief stay at G. W. U. as the sister of "Betsy" Hoge.

Another of the Chi Os, Mary Hoskins, decided to culminate the understanding of years with the announcement of her engagement to Theodore Gatchell. Both are former Centralites and "Ted" was one of Cadet Corp satellites of outstanding worth.

The Kappa's haven't gotten into the swing so much, with only one engagement to announce—that of Kitty Ruth, of '27, to R. Campbell Starr (better known as "Soup") one of our brilliant journalists.

Navy shines as well. We find that the many co-eds who hold standing bids to the Academy, don't always disappoint the boys. Clouie Senitiere, an A. D. Pi, has recently announced her engagement to Midshipman John Howell.

It was a sorrowing group of G. W. U. "eds" who realized many months ago that Jean Sime, Pi Beta Phi, gave and had in return the heart and pin of Martin Brand, a Zeta Psi from Dartmouth. Now she wears his ring and all our luck goes to them.

Little surprise and much happiness attends the news of the betrothal of Elsie Talbert, Chi O and G. W. U. graduate, to Charles Shelton, graduate of University of Maryland.

Another greatly beloved co-ed, Betty Waller, will be lost to G. W. U. and Pi Phi through June graduation and the persistent attentions of one coming lawyer and Sig-Chi, Smith Brookhart.

Another 5 pounds of candy went to Chi Omega when Hylda Wrenn announced her engagement to Irvin Russell, a Kappa Alpha, from the University of Maryland chapter.

Margaret Wheeler, Phi Delta, has made known her engagement to Alfred Montzka.

Engagements which have already culminated in marriage are:

That of Katherine Ash, Phi Delta, to Philip Caerde, Virginia Blackstone, a Kappa and graduate of the 1929 Class, whose marriage to John Milburn, U. S. N. took place this past summer.

A wedding ring was placed on Betty Bradley's left hand by Lt. John Earl. Betty was a G. W., A. D. Pi.

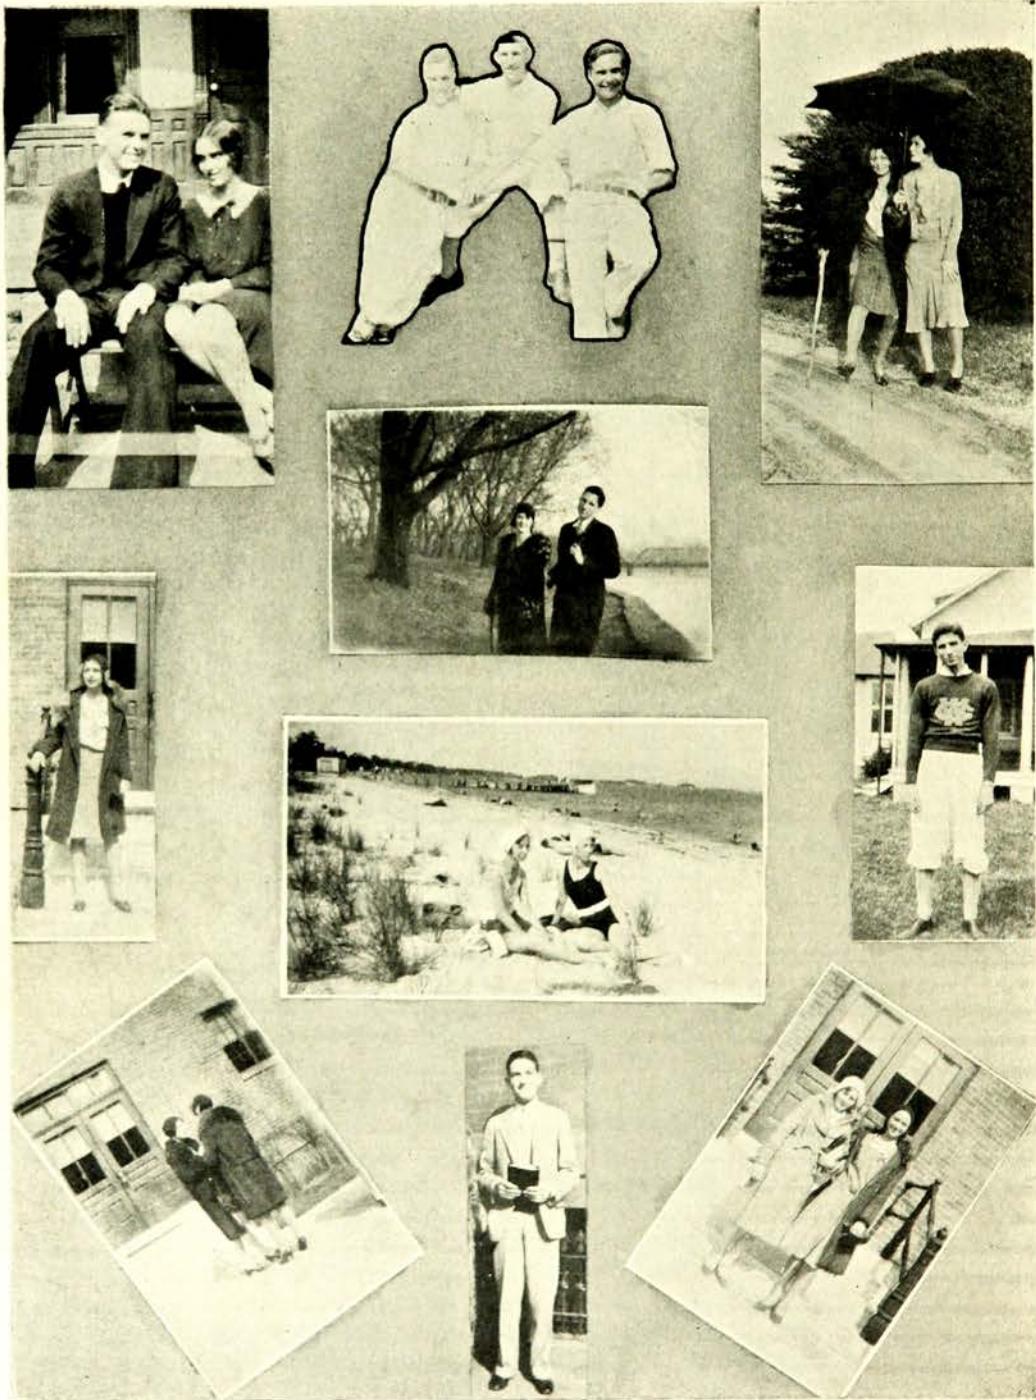

After a brief stay at G. W. as a transfer from Smith College, Betty Brownard, decided her interests lay with William Crawford and a home. After a quiet wedding in New York, she and her husband went to the West Indies to spend a month before commencing housekeeping at their apartment in Montclair, New Jersey.

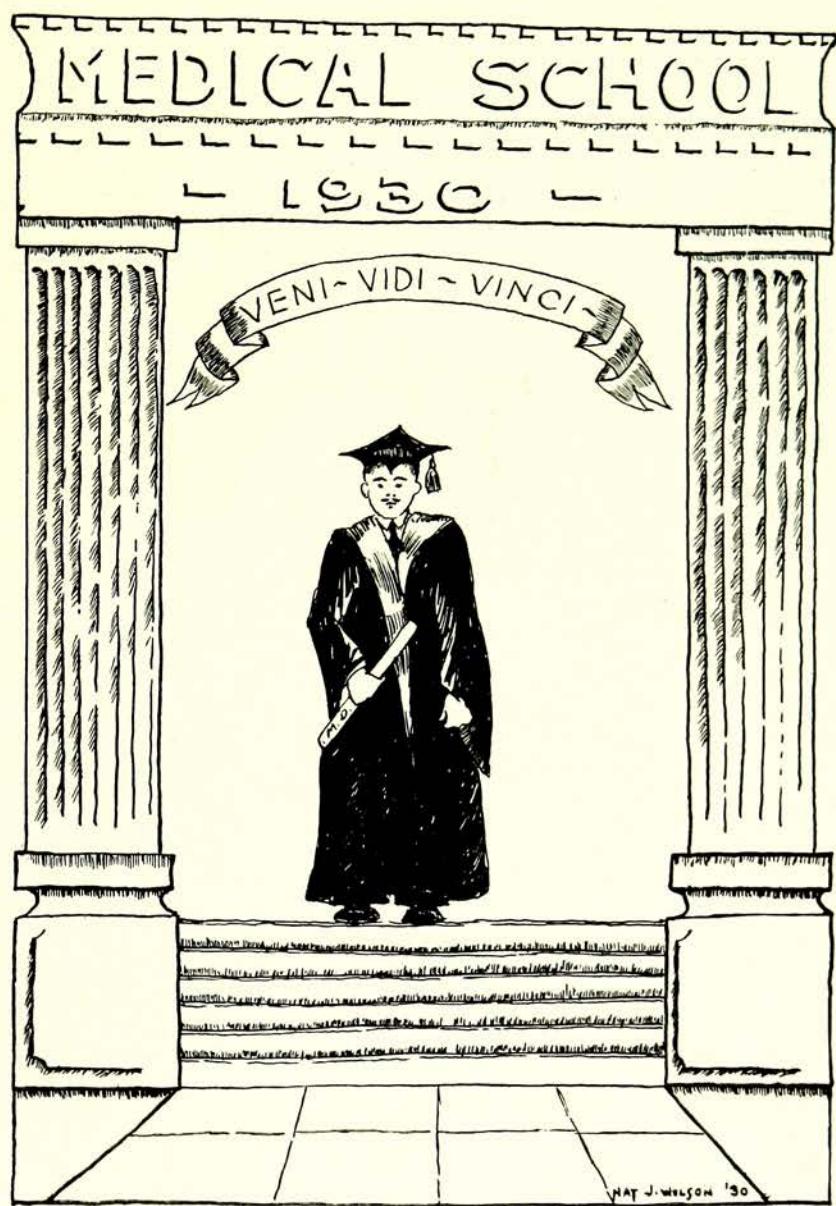

Little Virginia Buell, member of Pi Phi and known to all G. W.-ites, deserted all of us for marriage with Oscar Geise.

Virginia Crocker, one of the hard-working A. D. Pi's, took a brief period at mid-semester for her marriage and honeymoon with Irving Linger, and then returned to school to complete her A. B. degree this June.

One year of school and social life at G. W., a summer vacation, and then our much beloved Katherine Slaughter left A. D. Pi and all her numerous friends for life with Lt. Thenton Boaz, U. S. N.

A CLASS PASSES

By SAMUEL BRESLOW, '30

"Hello, is that you, Diogenes, dear.
You must stay to tea
Hubby's gone, so don't fear
It'll be only you and me."

"Methinks you were once seeking
A true story of civilization:—
Come, listen, time is fleeting;
Don't gaze in admiration."

THE TALE

'Twas back in twenty-six
The boys were full of pep—
They acted like city hicks
And they could dance and step!

For they were entering Med School
Worldly wise and fully grown—
Oh, so smart and so cool:
A symphony in full tone.

They plunged headlong
Into the task of learning
And you'd hear nary a song
As the midnight oil kept burning.

Anatomy, Chemistry, Histology
All in conglomeration
Gave a weird symptomatology:
'Twas a Freshman's consternation!

Slash! Slash! Slash!
Rang out that very June
As some were told to dash
To another school, with another tune.

Tho reduced in numbers
There were none who could stop
The sonorous slumbers
Of the seventy on top.

The big parade upward climbs
As Nineteen Thirty leads—
The advance of all times:
Spreading knowledge among the creeds.

L'ENVOI

"Alas! You have awakened quickly—
What! You must be on your way?
Pray, did my tea make you sickly—
Or will you return another day?"

"And in this gloomy dark you go—
To your faraway camp?—
Halt! Do not run so—
Diogenes! You forgot your lamp!"

HISTORY OF THE JUNIOR CLASS

History unrolls itself in one swift review—'tis a conference of the sanctissimi—and others.

"Now, gentlemen," thunders Doctor Hunter, "we have here a collection of various and sundry specimens, exhibiting bizarre forms!"

"Those heavyweights helped my football team a lot," says Coach Pixlee.

"Yes, but they broke down my chairs," wails Major Bocock.

"Well, couldn't they talk their way out of it?" naively asks Doctor Halley.
"I'm sure that Third Section could talk its way out of anything."

"Even my notebooks"—sarcastically from "Joe Critique."

"I don't know about the Third Section," interjects Sister Felix excitedly,
"but I missed a percussion hammer right after that Second Section left."

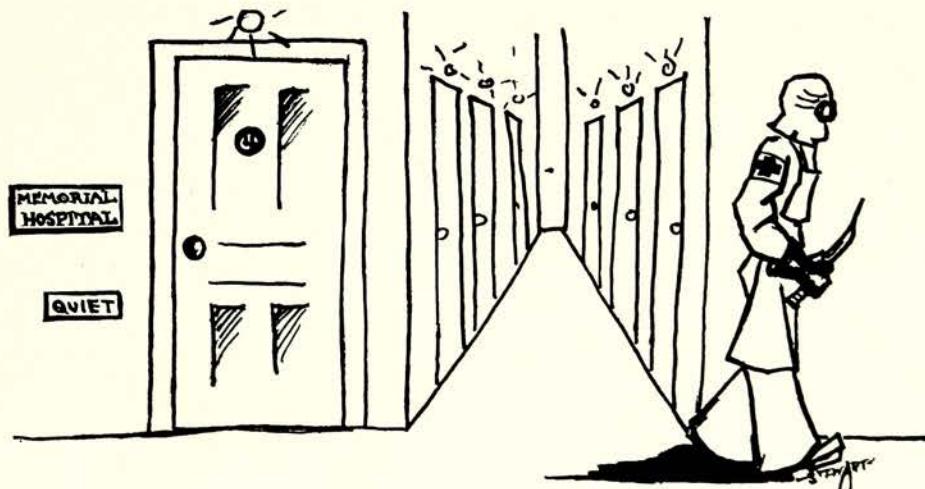

"They make a great deal of noise in the locker room, too," states the Dean positively.

"Worst recitations I've ever had since I made a hundred in Materia Medica," grumbles Dynamite. "I'm gonna give a written quiz next time."

"But who am dey—what foah all dese gen'men?" inquires a bewildered dispensary patient (decidedly dark, as usual).

"Oh, I can tell you," boasts a George Washington nurse. "I've been out with all of them. That's the Class of '31."

A MEDICAL STUDENT'S NIGHTMARE

By SAMUEL BRESLOW

In view of the popularity of the present theme song vogue in the movies, and the increasing ingenuousness of Rube Goldberg associated with the whimsical fantasies of "Believe-It-Or-Not" Ripley, and the influence of Graham McNamee thru the radio, the colliquy may well be expected during an operation.

(EDITOR'S NOTES—This play was first presented at Devil's Island at the special request of the French Government. It created an international furore, and many nations were in quest of the author. When given in New York City at Welfare Island, women fainted, men rushed, and children were trampled underfoot in an effort to likewise get at the author . . . to get his neck and choke him. However, it is with glee that we present this, the first translation into the English by Hubber En Budd of Persia. Photos of the author can be had in any up-to-date police station.)

Scene: Operating Room.

Time: Sure.

First Orderly: (Singing) "Hic, hike, ho; Eeny, meeny, no; What a funny floor; Without a cuspidor!"

Anesthetist: (Aggravated) —"Quiet; Can't you see that I am psychoanalyzing the patient? Do you know that throwing a bull's pizzle 40 yards is not uncommon among the Afghustions?" (Proof sent without asking.)

Second Orderly: (Coming in with head nurse—Dancing) (Orchestra plays the "House-mover's Song"; "Carry me Back to 'Ole Virginny").

"How heavenly it is here
Would that you couldst
And heavenly as you dear
I could if thou wouldst."

(The dance is over. For encore, the two orderlies do a tap dance and end up with a xylophone solo on a table of clamps, hemostats, retractors, and bed pans.)

(Bugles now play a fanfare. In walks Surgeon, Assistant Surgeon, two kibitzers (now vulgarly called internes) and several old women. The latter are also in the picture because in the region around Ecuador, New Zealand, Bronx, and Bessarabia, women become sterile at a very early age, and since sterility is to be desired they are the modern camp followers (cf. Henry VIII., pp. 001 or 5 grams)—Catch on?)

Surgeon: "We will now offer an Incantation to Jupiter:

Almighty One, we do Thee glory
May this patient live
And after all the grim and gory
He shall not look like a sieve."

(Finished, he takes a glass of schnapps—This is an old Russian Custom.) "Erisipelas, my knife! . . Gentlemen, (Turning to poor medical students in amphitheatre). "We will here do a supra-public operation for the removal of the left tonsil. This is a very delicate operation. Statistics show that almost all patients live. Ie shall be our purpose to disprove these figures and bring up the mortality rate." (He slashes right and left above the right breast to accompanying cheers of the stands—in this case the students of the amphitheatre.)

Assistant Surgeon:—"Herr, Dr. Kronkeit, don't you think that Sara Di' Connell in "Mouse's Eyes" at the Fox this week is just wonderful? It reminds me of my own troubles." (He steps to the front of the stage and sings in a 14-year-old voice:—)

"In days of old, When Knights were bold,
Dirty stories were told,
of Fanny and me!

(Chorus: Students, doctors, etc., sing;
"They said she was no good
But no one understood
It was a focus of infection
And not any derelection!"

CHORUS

"Fanny! You turn my head
Fanny! I love you instead
For your captivating, motivating, scintillating eyes say yes!
Fanny you are so pure
I love you, I do ensure
For I want to say you are enticing, exciting, bewitching—you I'll caress!"

Cute Head Nurse: "Oh Dr. Kronkeit, what a cute mustache you have. Do you know that last year in the Hymmalaya Mountains a volcano gave birth to three midget volcanoes and a hippopotamus?"

First Kibitzer (Interne): "Doctor, may I hold a retractor—last week I catherized a patient and the week before I shaved an armpit. Don't you think I deserve a promotion?" (Goes into a corner and sobs bitterly).

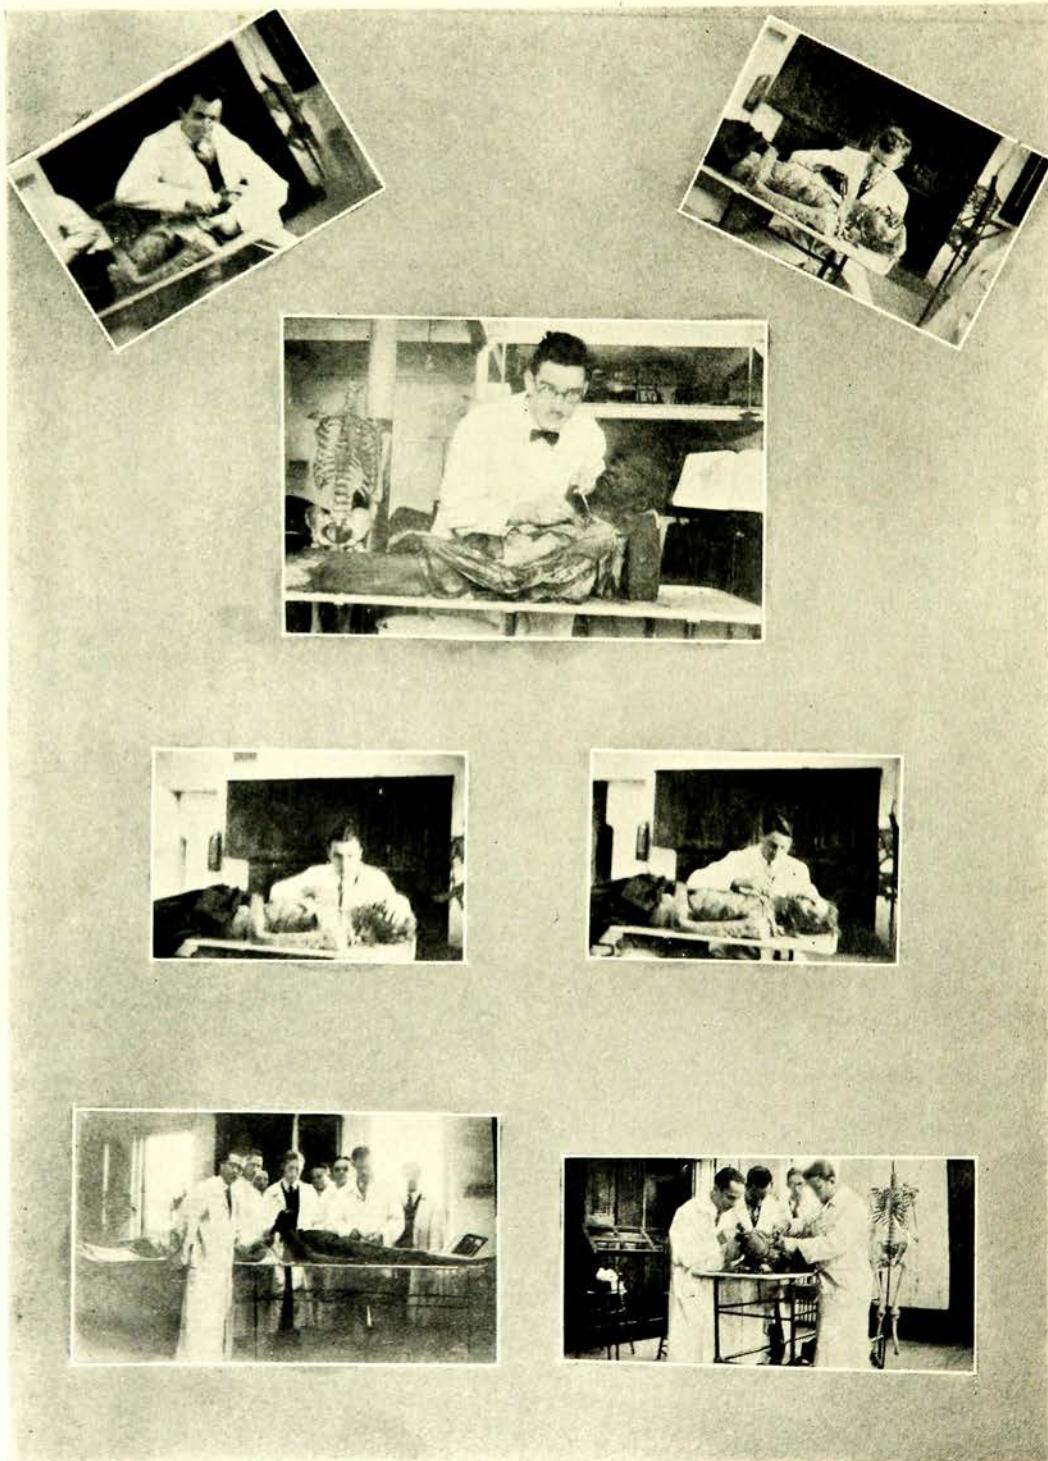

Chief Surgeon: (Singing) "Don't feel sad, my boy!"

"In the shade of the old apple tree
How happy we used to be—
In talking and singing
Till wedding bells were ringing
And we all had our Virginity.
Now listen to this story
Unfurl the flags in glory
For it's of me and my girl
The one with a curl
And shape! Boy what territory!
She told me she loved me
She never would let me see
Of course I collapsed. When she hugged, I gasped.
And I never knew how false she could be.
For first her teeth fell out
And she couldn't get about
'Cause when her wooden leg broke
She was nothing more than a joke
And I left her when she was crying
As tho she were dying
And her glass eye looked like a coke!"

The patient wakes up and looks around—sort of bored—saying "Say, I thought youse guys was goin' to help me out and all I see here is a lot of bums singin'—Now let me show you:
(Sits up on table and starts:)

And that bridge is a game
After which you're never the same
And if you are the host
You serve coffee and toast
—But who cares?
But if you try to operate
And an organ you do extricate
And it is a great success
And the patient is a mess
—But who cares? . . . I DO!!!

(As the applause (?) subsides, the sweet refrain of "Fanny" can be heard in the distance. Everyone turns, looking for it and they discover the Assistant Surgeon in a sound sleep, but singing the entrancing theme song. It can be easily seen that he is in the grasp of an especially fiendish bad dream. He awakes, looks startled, but continues singing the song and finishes it.

P. S. This finishes him also, and the author promises not to bother him again.)

Patient is back, under the spell, and the operation begins again.

Chief Surgeon: "Now gentlemen, we have here a chronic interstitial hepatitis with an acute hemorrhagic spleenitis . . . no, pardon me . . . I thought I was doing an autopsy on the patient but he is still alive. Hm-m-m-m, let's see, it's his tonsil, I think, we're after. (Probes around with his left hand, smokes a prominent cigarette with the right in order to gain nonchalance and to avoid the impending evil of a double chin.) Oh yes, here we are—I am now going up the side lines . . . I have hurdled the inferior vena cava . . . my right index finger has slipped thru a hole in the diaphragm . . . it is stuck . . . no it's not . . . it is running along side of the vertebrae . . .

no I was wrong . . . it's not the vertebrae; it's not the diaphragm; and there is no hole. I am at the pyloric end of the stomach, and it was the peritoneum that I was stuck on!! Well, mistakes will happen . . . there is a wonderful panorama to be seen here, gentlemen. Never before have I beheld such a soft stomach bed. Now I proceed up the field of operation. I did get into the mediastinum. Lots of room here, gentlemen. Hello, what's this? Oh, I see . . . I wish these people wouldn't eat mustard and oranges the night before an operation. What a ghastly smell!!!

First Orderly: (Offside) "I wonder if he knows that last year 8,421,487 corn plasters were sold to people who wear a 6 3/4 size hat?"

Second Orderly: (In reply). "That's nothing for when Grant took Richmond, more olives were eaten that year than there were petticoats in England."

(Both cheer).

"Ricketty-rax-co-rix
Get that tonsil—get it quick
Get it 'fore we're also sick
Yeah-h-h-h-h . . . Surgeon!!!!"

Surgeon: "Gentlemen, I think I've got it—Yes, here it is. Gee, what a large looking tonsil! Notice that striations!!! Beautiful!! We'll have it mounted . . . I'll report the case in the Medical Journals . . . You have witnessed a memorable operation . . . Never before have I seen such an anomaly!"

(Looks pleased with himself, and walks off). (Meanwhile, patient awakes, looks around and yawns. Gazes after disappearing surgeon. Yells).

Patient: "Hey! Come back here . . . Who asked you to remove my new bridgework!"

A CONVENIENT GUIDE FOR MEDICAL STUDENTS CONTEMPLATING SUICIDE

By SAMUEL BRESLOW

It is very discouraging to read the volumes and volumes of literature of medical derivation published yearly, without noting one real satisfactory treatise on the efficacy of conducting a self-satisfying suicide. Should more than one person wish to enter the suicide pact, just multiply the following rules or methods by two or three, as the case may warrant. It is our earnest desire to satisfy everyone, and everybody alike; whether he be a student or a professor; i. e., if there are any professors still existing who are intelligent enough to foretell the correct thing to do without referring to the book of etiquette. This little carefree manual is to the schizophreniac, what Gray's Anatomy is to the freshman.

The game:

1. Subject should not be fully disrobed when on the verge of the act because the present day policeman may feel offended upon discovering the body. However, should you decide on a garb au natural, it is in your favor because you may develop pneumonia and die, thereby thwarting any effort to save you.

2. Jumping into a river, or from a tall building is old-fashioned, and may cause serious injury to spectators. It is much easier to drown one's self by drinking themselves to death in a speakeasy.

3. Repeating a "Who-was-that-lady-I-saw-you-with-last-night" joke is an easy introduction to an untimely end. Should your assailant be underweight, you can hand him a copy of a Sunday paper and be clubbed to death besides making sure that you get into the papers.

4. Do not follow a drunken driver and expect to be killed by some unfortunate driving. This type of driver is extremely lucky and you will escape by the narrowest of margins. However, do not give up hope, but follow a woman driver, sneak up on her and calmly cross the street. She will make sure to get you, and soon you will be embalmed.

5. Don't drink wood alcohol! You may be saved and then you will be blind for life. To prevent such a calamity, a concoction of a teaspoonful of hydrocyanic acid with an equal amount of Croton oil mixed into a palatable solution of nitro-glycerine will explode all doubt of your existence on this earth.

6. Judges and juries are too lenient with slayers who plead the "Unwritten Law", so don't kill the father of your wife's child or vice versa. A better method is to surround a block of your relatives, including "in-laws", and using a machine-gun from left to right, commit the deed. Of course, see that your press agent, news talkie photographers, and a reputable detective are on hand. Should you have a hard time obtaining an electrocution, shoot the judge also, and remove doubt as to your integrity.

7. The idea that your girl friend's husband may walk in some evening with a rifle in his pocket is misleading. Too many platonic friendships are broken up this way. It is much easier to go to a southern state, use burnt cork and yell "I just betrayed Mamie Glutz", especially if Mamie happens to be the Mayor's pretty daughter. Life should not be a riddle now, for your body will be riddled with holes in a few minutes.

8. Become a radio announcer, with a "cute" style, a "lovely voice" and owner of a shrilly saxaphone, and then appear in the men's room of the theatre after you have made a personal appearance on the stage there. Your orchestra should not accompany you for they would probably suffer the same fate.

9. Bet on the races at the Maryland tracks. This is a slow, costly, tedious, and painful death, even though it may occur suddenly. It is some time before you pick a winner—sometimes you must repeat a school year—but when that certain horse, a "sure inside tip" from the nag's manicurist, wins, you will easily get acute dilatation of the right heart, and die instantly.

10. The author would like (?) to come in contact with any of his readers for then a happy ending will be assured him, and all the kiddies will get a day off from school, the fire bells will toll, the police will keep back the crowds, the New York Philharmonic will play, and all attend his funeral. Let joy be unrestrained!!!

THE SCHOOL OF NURSING

HISTORY OF THE SCHOOL

Incessantly the wheel of time rolls on, yet how many of us realize the transition that occurs at every cycle of the great wheel? It is no little task to open the eyes of the public to the fact that we are yesterday's tomorrow and the result of much time and effort on the part of our predecessors.

It was years ago when the George Washington University became one of the pioneers in establishing a Training School for Nurses, not a school in its present state but a mere skeleton on which the school of today was to be moulded.

On the first day of November, 1898, the building at 1335 H Street, previously used as a preparatory school, was opened as a general hospital. There was at this time no training school so that the nursing was carried on by nurses from Children's Hospital and Columbia Hospital.

In a short time the hospital was found inadequate. The board of trustees, inspired with the spirit of progress and with loyal regard for the Medical School, secured a loan and erected a new building adjoining the old one.

The new and enlarged hospital was formally opened February 28, 1903 with dedicatory ceremonies, and on the same day the Training School for Nurses was inaugurated. The course was made to cover a period of three years of theoretical and practical instruction.

Miss Minnie Paxton was the first Superintendent of Nurses. In her report for the year 1903 there were nineteen pupil nurses and two probationers. Miss Ethel Schoff, a graduate of Massachusetts General Hospital, is our present Superintendent. It is under her watchful eye that a class, of approximately twenty girls, is graduated each year to add, perhaps, a name or two more in the hall of fame.

In her pioneer days the George Washington University School of Nursing became outstanding for her educational requirements. Graduation from grammar school and at least two years work in high school were preliminary requirements. These standards have been raised at intervals until today only high school graduates are accepted, with preference to those with a college education.

Today the school is not outstanding because of its size but because of the adequate instruction and facilities made possible by connection with the Medical School.

LOCAL GLEE CLUB GOES NATIONAL

Here you see the National Champions bringing home to Prexy the trophy which they won in the Broadway city last winter. Many honors have now come to the club, and there is a grand rush every time a coed hears the melodious sound of one of these valuab'e voices. Miraculous what Missouri and the Middle West can produce in the way of coaches and directors—if we import a few more we may be able to make G. W. go national as a whole, instead of faring forth into the world in weak, independent groups.

Under the gaze of honest Abe's eyes, Dean Wilbur gives Midge Burnham a dollar for his Cherry Blossom. That's what we call generosity, and it makes the rest of us feel that we got bargains, because who else sacrificed more than two cokes for his flower?

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

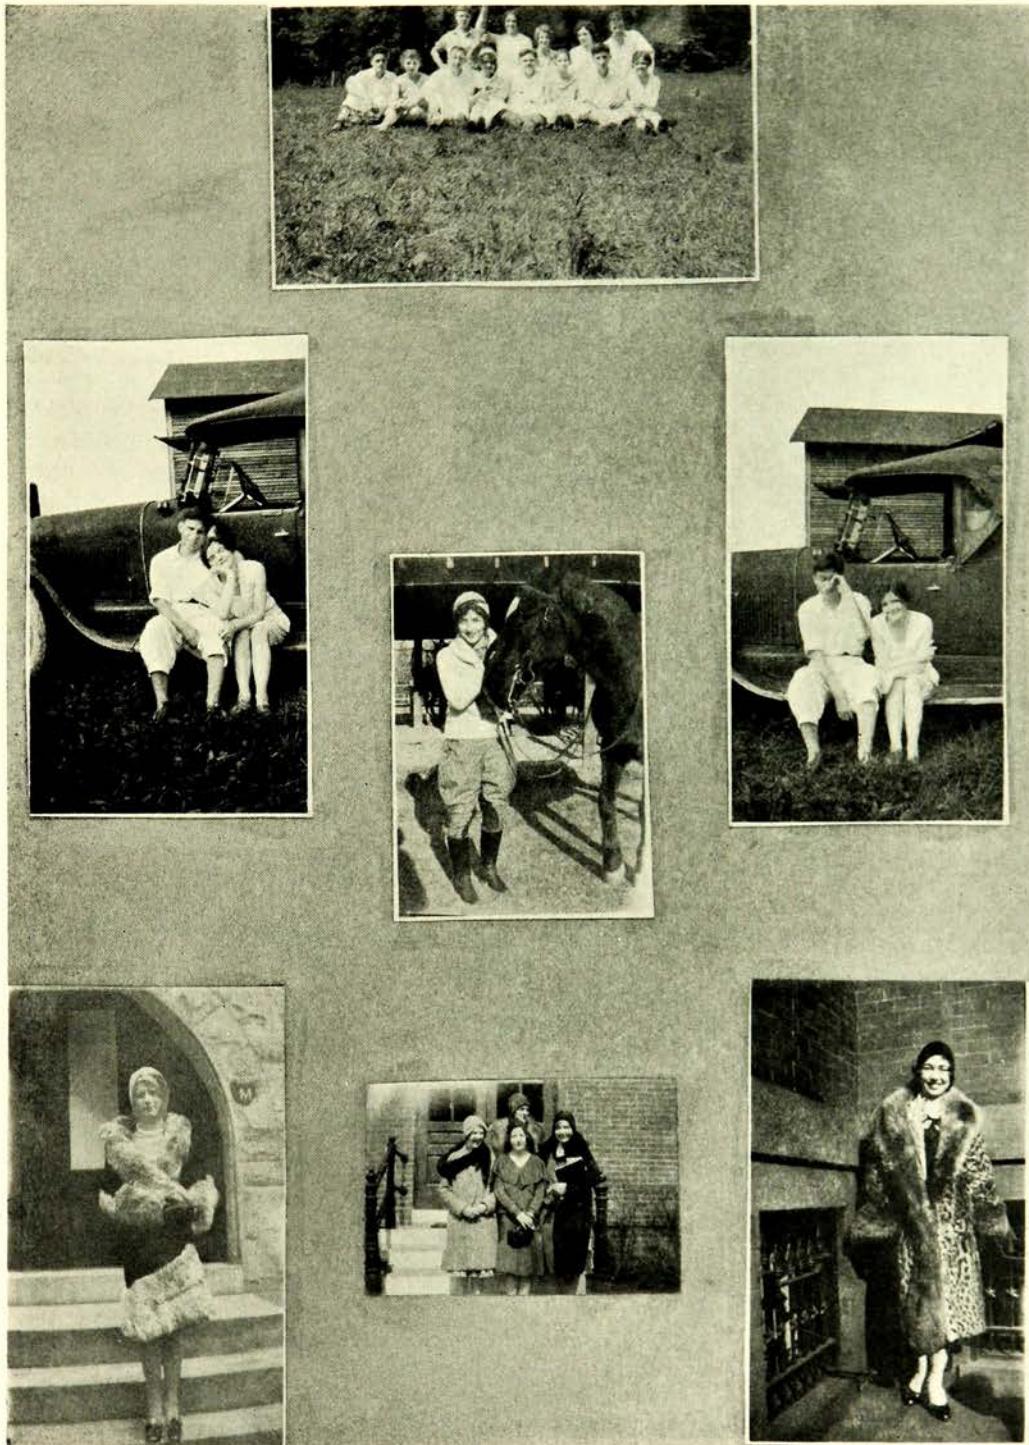

The Pi Phis fared well for about three months this spring! With a pledge group of thirteen there were just enough cooks not to spoil the broth for the score or more of actives who ate in the rooms every day. Maude Hudson initiated Wilhelmina Gude and Margaret Borjes into the secrets of some of the prize concoctions for which every sorority is famous. It wasn't long before the girls found that fruits of many kinds could be thrown together quite effectively to produce a salad that even Dr. Ragatz would think Monk had made for him.

When five co-eds headed by "O'Honey" Burnham approached Prexy, what could he do but break down and spend part of our million for his blossom? "Bertie" Wright seems quite pleased—did the President slip her another greenback? Marion Campbell is still in all the games around school in spite of the fact that she is supposed to be working in the Law School, and she looks rather downcast because Dr. Marvin didn't buy the flower she had to offer. Kitty Bell stands silently by—what else could she do? Winnie Beall, not Belle, stands guard, in her "Attenshun!" position.

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

The CHERRY TREE, 1930

Unselfish! My Yes! Betty Bunten and Dot Ruth not only decorated the Christmas tree for the benefit of the photographers, but they even made a good impression by giving up their winter coats and smocks for the barrel that the W. A. C. attempted to fill. Margaret Monk, publicity manager for Monk, Inc., was so busy that she completely forgot to take anything but the money to the family on Christmas Eve. We're glad we hadn't parted with anything precious!

THE S. A. E.'S AT HOME

The CHERRY TREE of 1930

Meet Henry William Herzog! "Bucky", the Thinker, in one of his idle moments, planning and planning his latest scheme. Among other things to his credit he is Business Manager of this worthy publication, and a member of the Colonial Club, whose aims include one of self-support. "Bucky" is a good fellow, and somehow or other has shown what can be done in a big business way at even G. W. U.

The joy of CREATING!

A truly fine Annual is more than a mere picture book Mirror-like it reflects the spirit of the school and the character of the class the reflection, unlike the mirror image, is undying, becoming the more beautiful with the mellowness of age. It is worthy of the best.

IN A TIGHT PINCH

Q. C.: What would you do if you were in my shoes?

Mrs. Gibson: Why, Miss Cherney, I'd shine them.

Mrs. Young's favorite expression at 9 A. M. and at 2:59 P. M.; "Where, oh where are those night nurses?"

OUR IDEA OF A GOOD TIME

Cokes in tooth brush mugs.
Ice cream served in candlestick holders, eaten with shoe horns.
Cake cut with fingernail files.
The coffee pot brewing.
Sandwiches a la finger.
Then: reach for a "lucky" and two sweets.

Probie: Oh, dear! I simply can't adjust my curriculum.

Sette: That's all right, Honey, it doesn't show anyway.

FACTS

We would rather have a pajama party and play bridge than anything else in the world.

The bravest of Seniors shivers in her boots when she is to report to the operating room.

Do we like to get together and talk about "ye good old days"? And how!

When we get out of training we're never gonna move again.

Brownie: They say he's a dry doc.

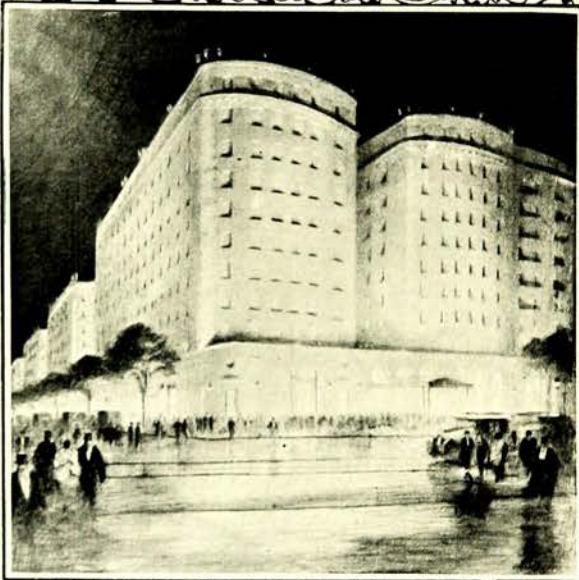

Fry: Why?

Brownie: Cauz, he doesn't give out prescriptions.

Hess' last will and testament reads—And I hereby bequeath my said hairnet to anyone that needs a good one.
